

'IRRECONCILABLES' IN SENATE ROUTED IN TREATY FIGHTS

Breaking Up of Group That Prevented Ratification of Versailles Pact Significant Feature.

FRANCE OF MARYLAND THE SOLE SURVIVOR

Original Band Gradually Depleted by Deaths, Failure of Re-election and Returns to Party Regularity.

By CHARLES G. ROSS, Chief Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, March 30.—The most significant feature of the recent Senate votes on the work of the Washington arms conference has been the crumbling away of the old "irreconcilable" strength which two years ago turned the scales against the Versailles treaty with its League of Nations covenant.

Yesterday's vote on the outstanding accomplishment of the conference—the five-power naval limitation treaty—saw only one Senator, France of Maryland, voting against a policy of co-operation with other Governments. Of the original group of isolationists only France retained a degree of irreconcilability sufficient to align him with Reed, of Missouri, against the battleship limitation program. Reed, who is taking part in the city campaign at Kansas City, had previously gone on record against the treaty in a speech announcing the conference of having misrepresented the facts about the five-five-three ratio.

On the Republican side, France was the sole survivor of a group of four who carried the banner of isolation through the fight over the four-power Pacific treaty and the four were all that remained of the old embattled brigade which Reed joined forces in the successful onslaught on the Versailles pact.

Fifteen Republicans, then four, then one. The four Republican votes against the four-power pact were those of France, La Follette of Wisconsin, Borah of Idaho and Johnson of California.

Where were the rest of the irreconcilables? Penrose and Knox of Pennsylvania died, and the Missouri vote was succeeded by men who favored the four-power pact. Grinnon of North Dakota was beaten in the 1932 primaries and his successor voted for the treaty. Fall of New Mexico is in the hands of Sherman of Illinois retired at the end of the last Congress.

All the others remaining in the Senate deserted the old standard and voted for the Harding treaty. Reed in a bitter speech called them turncoats, who had put the flag of party above the flag of country. Norris of Nebraska was one of them. He voted against the Versailles treaty principally because of the injustice that he thought it did to China.

How Some Were Cured. After Shantung had been restored to China, Norris was content to vote with his party for the four-power pact. Fernald of Maine, Brandegee of Connecticut, Poinsett of Washington, McCormick of Illinois and Moses of New Hampshire likewise put on the robe of party regularity.

Disaffection among some of them, which might have developed to a point endangering the success of the treaty, was cured by the administration's acceptance of the Brandegee reservation. Of the four who remained in the irreconcilable camp during the four-power treaty contest, only Borah of Idaho will not be up for re-election this fall.

France apparently will get the Republican nomination in Maryland, but unless all political signs fail he will be beaten for election by a conservative Democrat.

La Follette's grip on Wisconsin probably will enable him to come back.

Out in California "Hell-Roaring Hiram" is facing a fight. The interesting word reaches Washington that Herbert Hoover will enter the lists against him on a platform of international co-operation as against the isolationist views of Johnson.

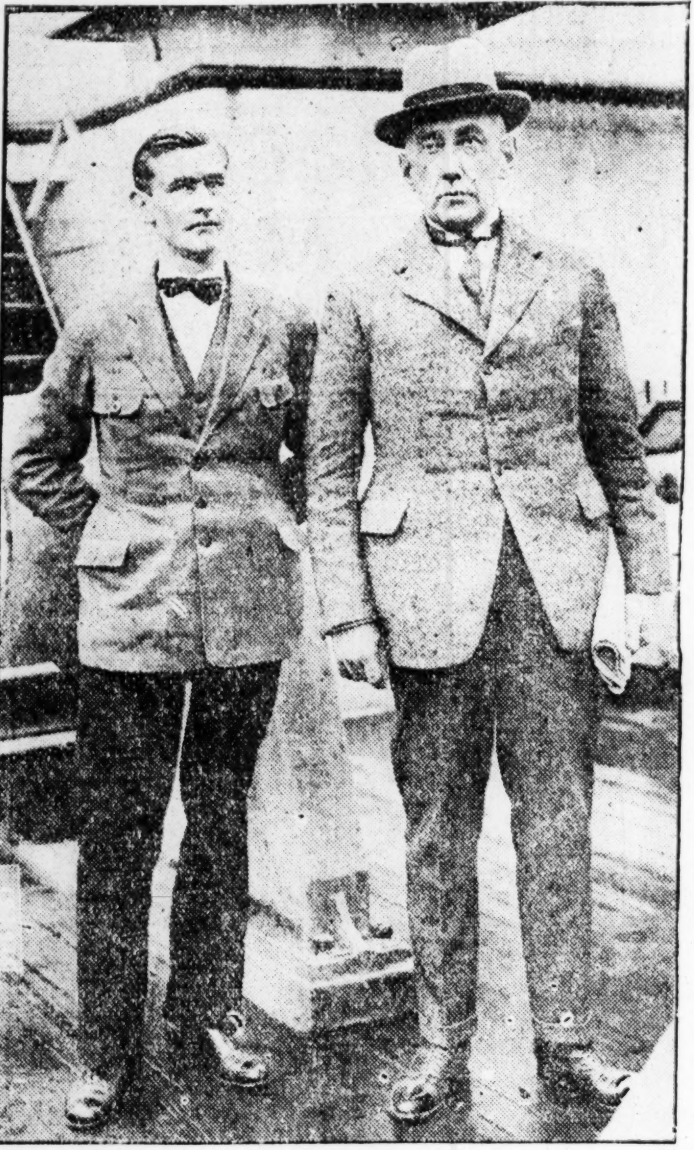

Hoover is now in the West on departmental business. Some of Hoover's friends here believe he will run; others are positive he will not. However that may be, it is certain that a strong sentiment for Hoover has been working up in the State.

Opposition Almost Certain. If Hoover is not persuaded to enter the anti-Johnson forces, it is said, try to unite on some candidate for the Republican nomination, possibly former Congressman Kent, and make a determined campaign to bring to his support the liberal elements who have been antagonized by Johnson's isolationist attitude and his dodging of the Newberry vote.

Virtually every newspaper in the State, except the Hearst papers is opposing Johnson.

Johnson is not beaten by a long shot—for California seems to have gone into the habit of electing him—nor is he undoubtedly in for a fight. Johnson knows that he is in a tight spot. He is now in Washington, looking for a way out of the administration. Putting all the known facts together, it appears that the way of the isolationist, whether in Missouri or California or elsewhere, is becoming increasingly hard.

Explorer Who Plans Air Flights Over North Pole and His Norwegian Pilot

OSKAR OMDAL, NORWAY'S PREMIER FLYER, AND CAPT. ROALD AMUNDSEN.

THIS photograph was made Tuesday, when Capt. Amundsen arrived in New York from Norway, where he had perfected his plans for his expedition to the North Pole. He will sail from Seattle in a few days and, with a seven-year's supply of provisions, will endeavor to drift across the Polar regions, returning to Norway by the way of the Greenland region. He will take two flying boats with him and will endeavor, under Omdal's pilotage, to make flights at frequent intervals over the Polar regions and particularly over the location of the Pole itself. He will have both wireless sending and receiving sets over which he will talk daily with Washington.

and did not vote. The New York Senator disagreed with the statement in the treaty text, that the use of gas in warfare had been "justly condemned by the general opinion of the civilized world." He argued that chemical warfare had not proved as actually more brutal than other accepted methods of destruction, and expressed a fear that the treaty pledges would be violated in an emergency. He declared many persons had gained a wrong impression as to the actual results of gas, quoting from reports of the Surgeon-General of the army to show that only 2 per cent of gas cases committed to hospitals in the American Expeditionary Force resulted in death, while among those sent to hospitals was 24 per cent. He also gave statistics to demonstrate that the effects of gas in causing blindness and tuberculosis are much less widespread than generally has been supposed.

CAT REFUSES TO GO ASHORE

By the Associated Press.

NEWPORT NEWS, Va., March 30.—Although the Panamanian bark, Maria Borges, lies at the bottom of the harbor here, a big black cat refuses to give up the ship. Rescuers who got off the crew took the cat into a launch, but now refuse to go ashore, and those who have attempted to force her to land have nothing but hundred armed men and hands for their remedy. The cat has a four-year record of never going ashore.

DUBLIN FREEMAN'S JOURNAL PLANT IS WRECKED IN RAID

Fifty Men Smash Presses, Pour Gasoline on Floors and Fire Building; News Print Supply Damaged.

By the Associated Press.

DUBLIN, March 30.—The raiders who wrecked the plant of the Freeman's Journal early this morning numbered about 50 and were not disguised. They cut the telephone wires and held up the staff at revolver point, confining them in a room while they smashed the presses, threw gasoline on the floors and stairs and set fire to the building. The plant's supply of news print suffered principally from the fire.

The raid is believed to have been a sequel to the publication by the newspaper of a report of the proceedings at the session of the De Valera section of the Irish republican army on Sunday.

The Freeman's Journal appeared this morning in the shape of a small handbill, which was placed all over the city. It contained an editorial which told of the attack on the newspaper premises, expressed defiance of those who made the attack and asserted it would continue to appear in some form or other and say what it chose "in exposing tyranny in whatever garb it appears," and would continue the fight for Irish liberty.

Republican army men armed with revolvers and rifles were seen tearing down the editorial wherever it was posted.

Conference on Means to Pacify Ireland Renewed.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, March 30.—Leading representatives of the British, provisional Irish Free State and Ulster Governments gathered today to consider proposals advanced yesterday at the first session of the conference called to consider means of pacifying Ireland. Those meeting this morning were: Winston Churchill, Secretary of State for the Colonies; Sir Lewis Robertson, Secretary of State for the Home Office; Sir James Craig, Premier of Northern Ireland; and Sir John Simon, Minister of Education in the Northern Government.

It is expected that a plenary meeting of the conference will be called later today.

That the negotiations were proceeding "very satisfactorily" was the only authoritative word given out at the consultations were resumed. Churchill again presided.

CHILEAN DELEGATES COMING

By the Associated Press.

SANTIAGO, Chile, March 30.—Carlos Aldunate Solar, one of the Chilean delegates to the Ancon treaty conference in Washington, and Felix Hurtado, secretary of the delegation, departed for New York yesterday. Luis Zaldarriaga, the other delegate, will sail Friday from Buenos Aires, where he is stationed as Chilean Minister to Argentina.

President Alessandri, in an interview granted to the Associated Press correspondent, said: "I have great faith in the success of the Washington meeting. We seek and shall continue to seek a settlement of the dispute with Peru within the limits of justice and the honorable compromise with the Ancon treaty, which is the supreme law for both peoples. It is certain that neither Peru nor Chile shall overlook this opportunity."

$50,000 SPENT YEARLY BY SLAIN FILM DIRECTOR, ADMINISTRATOR ANNOUNCES

By the Associated Press.

LOS ANGELES, March 30.—FIFTY thousand dollars a year was spent by William Desmond Taylor, film director, whose mysterious death by shooting Feb. 1 in the bachelor bungalow he occupied here has baffled the police, according to an announcement today by the Public Administrator.

An estate of $24,000 remains, according to the accounting. Out of this many bills are to be paid, including one of $112.50 for a jade tassel purchased from a local jewelry store, and one for $1100 funeral expenses.

Investigation revealed Taylor spent large sums in presents to motion picture actresses.

PROFESSOR IS ACQUITTED OF CHARGE OF ATTEMPTED MURDER

By the Associated Press.

MONTREAL, March 30.—Professor J. A. Morin of McGill University, charged by a fellow faculty member, Prof. Hermann Walter, with attempted murder at a summer camp in Fieslet County, Quebec, in August, 1921, today was acquitted.

Dr. Walter charged that Prof. Morin poisoned the water in his well at his summer home at Fieslet County, cuttings from his fruit trees in order to kill them, and threatened him.

The prosecution produced material as having been found in Prof. Walter's well, which was identified as Prof. Morin's. The plaintiff on the stand said a threatening letter he received was in Prof. Morin's handwriting.

Dr. Walter said he was born of German parentage in Switzerland, but denied that he hid British troops during the war or exalted the qualities of the German soldiers.

HYDE NOT TO NAME COMMITTEE TO STUDY MILLER'S EVIDENCE

By the Associated Press.

GOVERNOR SAYS HE WILL NOT FOLLOW SUGGESTION OF MINISTERIAL ALLIANCE.

Gov. Hyde, in Kansas City yesterday, said he would not appoint a committee to investigate testimony collected by Victor J. Miller, President of the Police Board, as to immoral acts of St. Louis high school students and youths of high school age.

The Ministerial Alliance, in a resolution passed Monday, asked the Governor to name such a committee.

Miller said 10 days ago that he was going on a vacation, and that his charges would be considered by a committee in his absence. He was still here at the time of Tuesday's Police Board meeting, and no announcement as to the selection of a committee has been made.

KROGER MANAGER TELLS OF OUTWITTING TWO ROBBERS

By the Associated Press.

Men Leave When Told Collector Has Just Been There; Say They Will Return.

Two men, one of whom had a revolver, entered a Kroger grocery at 1927 North Westwood avenue at 1 p. m. yesterday, the manager, Bernard Lerner of 2374 Wells avenue, reported to the police.

"How would you like to throw up your hands?" the one with the weapon inquired.

"It's all right with me," Lerner said he replied, "because there's no money here. The collector beat you to it. He was here half an hour ago and got it all."

"All right," he said, "we'll see you later," the talkative robber replied, and turned and walked out.

Lerner told the police he outwitted the men as the money was in one of their suits.

HALLIDAY-TURNER CASE CONTINUED TO FALL

Demurrer in Case of Alleged Counterfeiting of French Certificates to Be Heard Sooner.

The case of George V. Halliday, bankrupt broker, and Harry Turner, editor of Much Ado, who are charged with counterfeiting certificates put forth under the authority of the French Government, was continued today in the United States District Court, until the next term, which opens Sept. 18.

A demurrer, filed by the defense counsel in behalf of Turner, will be argued at some time before the next term. The demurrer, like the indictment, is in five counts, and each count alleges formally that the indictment is insufficient to show an offense against the laws of the United States.

It is expected that the defense, in arguing the demurrer, will contend that the certificates alleged to have been counterfeited have not been shown to be actually the certificates of the French Government.

The banking firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., as agents for the French Government, issued interim certificates to subscribers for French bonds, and it will probably be argued that these interim certificates did not have the legal status of obligations of the French Government.

The continuance was granted with the consent of both sides. District Attorney Carroll stated to the court that A. M. Frumberg, counsel for the defense, advised him that he could not handle the case at present, as he had to be out of the city. He said that as the demurrer was to be argued, and as witnesses would have to be brought from France for the trial, he would consent that the case should go over.

ONIONS AND CARROTS FOR JOFFE

By the Associated Press.

SEATTLE, Wash., March 30.—The palate of "Papa" Joffe, jaded by rich foods at scores of banquets, is to be tickled today with the March's favorites—blood sausage, green onions, lettuce and carrots. Madame Joffe will see to that herself.

Accompanied by their daughter, Mademoiselle Germaine, the wife of the famous French socialist, yesterday visited a market, stood in line for a market basket and then made the round of the stalls.

If the court should sustain the demurrer, the Government would have the right of appeal to a higher court, and an attempt would probably be made to take the question involved directly to the Supreme Court. If the court should overrule the demurrer, the case would go on in September.

Halliday has admitted responsibility for the issuance of the counterfeit certificates in question. Turner has denied any guilty knowledge of the matter, stating that he helped Halliday in getting engraved sheets printed, without knowing he was doing so.

The delegates also decided to ask the Reparations Commission to determine within what limits it would be possible for those countries to enter into agreements with Germany for payments in kind similar to the Wiesbaden accord, signed last year by Dr. Walter Rathenau, for Germany, and Louis Loucheur, who was at that time French Minister of Liberated regions.

Bowden agreed to present these requests to the Reparations Commission at its next meeting.

DELEGATES MEET TO DISCUSS REPARATION PERCENTAGES

By the Associated Press.

COUNTRIES NOT REPRESENTED AT ALLIED FINANCE CONFERENCE SEND EMISSARIES TO PARIS.

PARIS, March 30.—Delegates from Brazil, Rumania, Greece, Portugal, Czechoslovakia, Poland and other countries, not represented at the recent conference of Allied finance ministers in Paris met today under the presidency of Roland W. Bowden, American unofficial representative on the Reparations Commission. They expressed a desire that the percentages of reparations reverting to the various countries from German payments be fixed as soon as possible.

The delegates also decided to ask the Reparations Commission to determine within what limits it would be possible for those countries to enter into agreements with Germany for payments in kind similar to the Wiesbaden accord, signed last year by Dr. Walter Rathenau, for Germany, and Louis Loucheur, who was at that time French Minister of Liberated regions.

MEXICO ADVOCATED AS FIELD FOR AMERICAN INVESTORS

By the Associated Press.

Commercial Attache Says Economic Stability Is Needed for Within Few Years.

"Mexico will offer the greatest field in the world for American capital just as soon as economic stability is obtained there," Alvin Hovey, American commercial attache at the American Embassy at Mexico City, told a Post-Dispatch reporter today. He is here to discuss Mexican conditions with St. Louis business men, on his return to Mexico from New York City.

"When this stability will come is problematical, but it is hoped for within a few years. Right now I would advise American firms with sufficient capital to spend money and wait for return, to investigate their opportunities in Mexico. The smaller business men should hold back a little."

COMPROMISE ON WAGE OF CARPENTERS LIKELY

Representatives of District Council and Master Builders to Confer Today.

Representatives of the Carpenters' Union District Council and of the Master Builders' Association, this afternoon in the Chamber of Commerce Building, will discuss an adjustment of union carpenters' wages to new conditions in the building industry.

The builders had demanded a reduction of 20 per cent, from $1.25 to $1 an hour, which was rejected in a referendum vote of the union, and recently announced that the wage would be arbitrarily fixed at $1 an hour beginning Saturday. It is likely that a compromise agreement will result from the conference as both sides prefer to reach an agreement by arbitration.

The builders have announced that they favor a maximum wage of $1 an hour for carpenters and would make a contract with the union on this basis.

The Hoisting Engineers' Union which yesterday announced a voluntary wage reduction of 10 per cent, from $1.25 to $1.12 1/2 an hour, is the eighth building trades union to reduce wages as a means of lowering building costs so that the St. Louis building program aggregating several million dollars, can be started this spring. Wages of apprentices were not affected. The Hoisting Engineers' Union has about 100 members.

Other unions that have reduced wages are the painters, paper hangers, decorators, cement finishers, from $1.25 to $1; glaziers, from $1.25 to $1.00; ironworkers, from $1.25 to $1.00; and building laborers, who accepted a graduated scale from 75 cents an hour downward.

Large unions, including the carpenters, that maintain the $1.25 scale are the plumbers, bricklayers, masons, sheet metal workers, millwrights, steamfitters and roofers. Plumbers receive $1.25 an hour and have not considered lower wages.

The residence is left to her granddaughter, Bernice Reid, with the stipulation that Mrs. Lyons' son, Ellis Dore, 86 years old, be permitted to occupy the first floor rent free. Sam Houston

Died July 26, 1863

"To the people of Texas, Houston will ever be a beloved memory."

In somewhat different but forceful manner, thousands of physicians and druggists have preferred to use the products of Burroughs-Wells, a business begun in the year Houston died.

Their requirements of quality and purity called for methods and knowledge of scientific accuracy. You, therefore, can definitely depend on all your medicines made by—

REED STIRS THINGS
UP IN KANSAS CITY

Senator's Attack on Hyde's Police Board Arouses Interest in Majority Campaign

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, March 25.—The charge by United States Senator Reed in each of several speeches he has delivered this week in the Kansas City Mercury campaign that police oppression "worse than the Chinese of the old Russia" under the orders of Gov. Hyde's Board of Police Commissioners has aroused interest throughout the State in the Kansas City election.

The Senator gave in detail three instances which he pronounced "typical of police methods in Kansas City."

An examination of the record discloses a systematic abuse of authority which is almost unbelievable.

He said that a man named John Doe, who had been shot down in the street, was taken to the hospital and then to the morgue, where he was kept for several days before being buried.

The following were the three cases mentioned by Reed:

James Melrose, a 10-year-old boy, was watching a group of boys and young men "shooting craps" on a vacant lot, when a policeman ordered them to stop. The policeman then ordered the boys to get up and go to the police station.

Miss Nellie Cunningham, residing in the building in which her father for many years conducted a hotel and bar, was arrested and the place searched without warrant. The stock of liquor which was stored in the hotel after his death and after the hotel and bar were closed, was seized.

Miss Cunningham was locked in jail and refused her right to communicate with an attorney for several hours. The whiskey, although the legal proprietor, Miss Cunningham and her sister were never returned to them. When making the search a policeman entered a room in which Miss Cunningham's sister was dressing and refused to leave the room, though told by her to do so.

Reed said each of these cases was a violation of law by the policeman and that in each case the policeman involved should have been prosecuted. In the Melrose case, he said, the Police Board of which Matt W. Foster, Republican nominee for Mayor, was president, exonerated the policeman, but later discharged him, because he had refused to state in his application that he had been convicted of committing a crime.

Foster was asked by a Post-Dispatch reporter for a statement of each of the cases.

"In the Melrose case," he said, "the policeman was ordered held on a charge of manslaughter by the Coroner's jury. The Coroner's office was controlled by Tom Marks, leader of the boss element in Republican politics, and opposed to me, and I returned that verdict. The evidence showed that the policeman had not intended to shoot the youth, and that he had been shot by accident when the policeman fired in the air to induce the boys to stop."

"A few days later we learned that this policeman had once served a term in the reform school. We discharged him because he had made a false answer to a question in his application blank, the question being whether he had ever been convicted of a crime."

"I do not know anything about the other cases. I have never heard of them."

Further information requested by the reporter for information regarding the Cunningham and Leavitt cases, but there the information was refused. Neither Police Commissioner nor the Chief of Police was at headquarters and the Chief's secretary said "he could not think of giving out information in these matters." Foster, who appeared at headquarters while the reporter was waiting, made no effort to obtain the information, although he was asked for it by the reporter.

He said he was no longer a Commissioner, having resigned to become a candidate for Mayor that he had merely called there for his mail, and that he had nothing to do with the police records.

GARDNER IDENTIFIED AS LEADER OF

Priest at Benton, Ill., Connected With $1 Deposit Box Robbery

BENTON, Ill., March 25.—Gardner, alias "Johnny," former convict, as an expert safe-blower, is alleged to have been identified as that of the gang of four robbers that deposited boxes in the St. Louis Depository Co. of Chicago last, and got away with valued at $100,000.

"I guess I'll get the rap," he said, "for the job I pulled off in Illinois seven years ago." When told that witness with the Chicago robbery in a position to identify him, Gardner smiled.

The witness, the late Dr. James Knowlton, said the prisoner could be identified with one of the arrested robbers in a St. Louis, Mo., when the new members of his gang, tools and automatic pistols were found back the stack, and the finger-prints, measurements and other data have been taken for use with those of previous robbers, whose records are a matter of the police.

Fred W. Weaver, of the branch of the Postoffice Department, after internal searches at West Frank he was satisfied they were of Gardner. He expressed belief that several of the robbers identified as "Johnny" they refused to give him names which are believed to be those of the robbers.

Tells of Attempted Arrested Deputy Sheriff Henry D. Gardner, who had been throughout the country by inspectors, police and FBI detectives since March 11, he jumped a $1000 bond to stay with a safe robbery at St. Matthews, Ark. on March 11, he wanted in court more than 25 bank and robbery in Southern Illinois.

CHICAGO EMPLOYMENT CONDITIONS ARE STEADY

Federal Reserve Bank. Makes Report on February Situation, Showing Wage Decrease.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, March 26.—While employment conditions for many manufacturing industries changed during February, the total number employed by the industries practically was unchanged, according to the March business conditions report of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago. Returns from 219 firms in the seventh Federal Reserve district showed 172,157 persons employed Feb. 28, this number representing 1.1 per cent more than for the preceding month but 2.3 per cent less than for the same month a year ago. The amount of the payroll was 2.5 per cent less than for the preceding month, the report said, and 11.5 per cent less than for the same month a year ago.

The pay per employee was 4.5 per cent less than for the preceding month and 3.4 per cent less than for Feb., 1931. The percentage of production to ordinary capacity for February was 62 per cent, for January, 63 per cent and for February, 1931, 65 per cent.

Fifteen of 28 reporting groups of industries showed increases in the number of employees. The greatest improvements in employment since a year ago, the report said, were shown by the following in the order given: leather, shoes, knit goods and wearing apparel, furniture, railway repair shops and metals other than iron and steel. Agricultural machinery groups showed increases in the number employed over the month of January, as did factories manufacturing electrical goods, automobiles and accessories, and the stone, cement and clay products group.

BANK JOB FOR MRS. SPURGIN

Wife of Defaulting Banker to Support Self and Daughter.

CHICAGO, March 30.—Mrs. Warren C. Spurgin, wife of the defaulting president of the Michigan Avenue Trust Co., has accepted a position in a Chicago bank, and will support herself and her daughter, Vivian.

"The independence of making one's own way is delightful," says Mrs. Spurgin. "Women should be independent financially and not have to depend upon the male sex for their income. It's all wrong."

LADIES! DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

Use Grandma's Sage Tea and Sulphur Recipe and Nobody Will Know

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and attractive. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is messy and out of date. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wyleth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get this famous old preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known down-town druggist says it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, it becomes beautifully dark and glossy.

STOMACH UPSET?

Get at the Real Cause—Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking tonics, or trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the real cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels. Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way. When the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, away goes indigestion and stomach troubles.

Have you a bad taste, coated tongue, poor appetite, a lazy, don't-care feeling, no ambition or energy, trouble with undigested foods? Take Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color. They do the work without griping, cramps or pain.

Take one or two at bedtime for quick relief. Eat what you like. Live and thrive.

BOY, KNOCKED OFF "COASTER"
BY AUTO, RUNS TO SCHOOL

Charles He Is Not Hurt: Another Boy, 7, Suffers Concussion of Brain When Hit by Car.

Frank Bird, 9 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Calvin Bird of 2442 South Eighth street, got up and ran to the Madison School yesterday after he had been knocked from his "coaster" by an automobile driven by Edwin F. Brändel, 2827 1/2 North street, in front of 1824 South Eighth street.

The boy insisted he was not hurt and remained at the school. He was crossing the street with his top when the accident occurred.

Dominick Randazzo, 3 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Randazzo, 849 Carr street, suffered concussion of the brain, scalp wounds and cuts and bruises when struck by an automobile driven by F. W. Eggen, 1000 Eads avenue, in Carr street, 50 feet west of Eighth street. Policemen reported the boy ran into the street from behind a parked automobile at the curb and stepped directly in the path of the other motorist.

WOMAN DRIVING AUTO HELD UP

Mrs. Simon Lasky of 723 Lind avenue, driving her automobile east on Maple avenue at 5:50 last night, was stopped at Leona avenue by two youths, who threatened her with revolvers and demanded her money.

She took $25 in bills from her purse and gave them the money, and then she drove on, downtown.

Morris Greenberg, 31, of 1426 Bidie street, a junk dealer, was knocked from his wagon when it was struck by an automobile of an undertaking company. He suffered internal injuries and a fractured right leg.

QUEBEC SHRINE OF STE. ANNE
BURNS; STATUE IS RESCUED
Fire Starts Among Pilgrims' Crucifixes.
By the Associated Press.
QUEBEC, Canada, March 30.—The famous North American shrine of Ste. Anne de Beaupre was destroyed by fire yesterday, with a property loss of $1,200,000. Defective wiring ignited a pile of crucifixes cast down by pilgrims, who, after kneeling in the basilica, had arisen announcing themselves miraculously cured. Soon the church and the monastery of the redemptorist fathers were aflame, and for a time the whole village was threatened. Priests attached to the basilica organized a procession and marched around the famous statue of Ste. Anne on its ornate column, praying that the edifice might be saved. Soon, however, the monastery caught fire, the cathedral was attacked and it became apparent that both were doomed. Then, while some of the priests fought the flames, others entered the blazing church to save the statue. Many were carried to safety. Among the relics saved were the miracle-working statue of Ste. Anne and a number of paintings by old masters.

WOMAN VISITOR BADLY HURT
WHEN GAS GRATE EXPLODESMiss Mamie Smith of East St. Louis
Victim of Accident in Her Home.

The explosion of a gas grate yesterday in the home of Joseph P. Smith, 615 Lynch street, caused serious injury to Miss Mamie Smith, 25 years old, of 1423 East Broadway, East St. Louis, a visitor.

Miss Smith was seated in a chair in front of the fire when the explosion caused a piece of the grate to strike her on the head. The flame from the gas after the explosion set fire to her clothing and she was burned on the face and left side of the body. Doctors said she had suffered a probable fracture of the skull. The cause of the explosion was not determined. The furniture in the room was damaged $100.

ONE SOON AFTER OTHEROnly Few Seconds Between Deaths, Brother Refused to Permit Operation.By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, March 28.—Joseph and Rosa Blazek, known as the "Siamese twins," died at a hospital here at 2:07 a. m. today. Joseph's death occurred first and was followed in a few seconds by that of his sister. Physicians had declared early in the night that in the event of the death of one the other would die quickly as their brother, Frank Blazek, had refused to permit any operation which would sever their bodies.

The twins, 42 years old, had been confined at the hospital for the last 18 days. Joseph was 15 of yellow complexion which was followed by pneumonia. Shortly before her death, Rosa became ill at bronchitis.

Following the refusal of the brother to authorize the operation, Dr. H. H. Breakstone, chief of the surgical staff at the hospital, declared it would be impossible to save one of the twins in the event of the other's death. Preparations had been made for the operation and the physicians were ready to make every effort to save the life of at least one of the twins.

Delicate Operation Required.
Dr. Breakstone explained that a delicate operation would have been necessary. Before their death he had expressed the opinion that the phenomenal affinity of the twins was so great that if one should die the other would also succumb before the hands of flesh and bone that join them could be severed.

Although the twins possessed, apart from their bodies, and certain organs, Dr. Breakstone explained they had only one set of secondary digestive and excretory organs. The stomach and intestines of the twins were joined by a single tube, as were the digestive organs to save the life of the survivor.

Rosa was married, her name being Rosa Blazek. A normal-looking woman, her husband, Joseph, was a captain in the German army and was killed in action in 1917. She was married 15 years ago. Joseph never married.

Son Works at Bridge.
The twins were born at the bedside of the mother, who until within the last few hours was less than 40 years of age.

The twins were born in Czechoslovakia. These were four other children, all normal and all still living. The father is also said to be alive, his age being 55. The mother died a year ago at the age of 57.

During a tour of the world, the twins attracted considerable wealth. They did without making a will, although their attorney, J. L. Tishler, has been at the hospital for several days to see that their affairs would be in condition to carry out a will.

The physicians said the twins reacted differently to the same medicine. Although their blood recently had been found to be the same.

Medical records revealed by physicians who have been interested in the case, disclose a number of unusual Siamese twins. The original Siamese twins, Chang and Eng lived to an age of 64. They married separately and Eng had six children and Eng five all normal. Eng died first and a surgeon separated them. Chang died soon afterward.

Twins that have survived adulthood have included the Hindu sisters who were joined face to face, the connection being at the cheek, the Newport twins, somewhat similar to the Hindu twins, the Oakes sisters, Raddick and Doddick, joined side to side, the Biddenden twins, connected shoulder to shoulder, and with one arm, the Hungarian sisters, Helen and Judith, joined back to back at the lower segment of the spine, the North Carolina sisters, Miller and Christine, joined as were the Hungarian sisters, and the Bohemian twins, Rosella and Josephine, connected in the same manner as the twins who just died. Their connection was through the pelvis, the right leg of one and the left of the other being fused together.

NEW YORK ZONING ACT LAWYER
TO WORK ON ST. LOUIS CASE
Edward T. Bassett of New York has been employed by the Chamber of Commerce as special counsel to prepare the argument under a motion for a rehearing of the Missouri Supreme Court's recent decision weakening the St. Louis zoning ordinance.

Bassett is author of the New York zoning law, the first of its kind in the country. The St. Louis ordinance was the second passed. Bassett said yesterday at a luncheon meeting of the chamber that, in his opinion, the Supreme Court would strike out many of the ordinance harmful to the law after the rehearing, but that if it persisted in the view that the city then should seek increased police power to enforce zoning, either by legislative grant or charter amendment.

PART TWO.

How Fares the Child in Russia? It Has Fallen Into Evil Days and Emma Goldman Tells Why Crediting the Bolsheviki With Earnest Effort in Regard to Education, She Declares the Bu- reaucratic State Has Frustrated Best Work of the Communists.

Miss Goldman is writing this series from Russia fresh from a two years' stay in that mysterious land which she has just succeeded in quitting. After being barred from several other countries through the influence of the Bolsheviki, she has been permitted to enter Sweden. It will be recalled that the writer, who is known throughout the world as an anarchist, was deported to Russia together with Alexander Berkman by order of the Department of Labor in December, 1919.

By Emma Goldman.

(Copyright by Press and Pulitzer Publishing Companies, The New York World and the Post-Dispatch.)

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, March — The vicious circle created by the communist state, and which thwarts the most sincere endeavors, is nowhere so evil and apparent as in the Bolsheviki activities in behalf of the child. For though much of the accounts of child life in Russia is more legend, still it must be admitted that a great attempt has been made. I remember vividly the impression made upon me by one of the speakers at the second anniversary of the October revolution, held in Madison Square Garden, in 1919. The man had just returned from Russia. He seemed the audience to great enthusiasm by his description of the care and treatment of the children in Russia. My heart went out to the people of that country—the masses who had thrown off the yoke of ages and were now being "led by the hand of a child." It was so wonderful.

All through my voyage on the floating prison, the Buford, the thought of the work done for children in Russia sustained and warmed my spirit. How full of promise was the future; how inspiring to become part of that splendid new life! But in Russia I realized that I had reckoned without the vicious circle—the socialist state which has compressed every effort within its orbit.

Children, Sequestered as Thieves, Blot on Fine Petrograd School

It was not until I had been in Russia several weeks that I had an opportunity to visit the first school, the best in Petrograd. It is called "Polkashina." We talk about model schools, literally "show schools." I did not grasp its meaning until later. The school was placed in the Hotel Europe, the place still retaining much of its former elegance with spacious rooms, beautiful chandeliers and luxurious furniture.

In the winter of 1920 the shortage of fuel was so great in Petrograd that the population all huddled under one blanket. The children were crowded in the school in as few rooms as possible. But they were clean, well kept and comfortable. The children averaging from six to 12 years of age, were well fed and contented. The physician in charge conducted me through the large place, including the kitchen, shining with lovely copper dishes and explained everything in detail.

The school was used as a sort of receiving and distributing center. Children were brought there from all parts of Russia, from the provinces mostly. They came in very nice, clean, well-dressed, and well-fed. They were bathed, weighed, measured, fed up and given general treatment. For a short period they remained in the school, receiving elementary instruction, and later they were sent to other boarding schools for children.

Not Tolstoy's Method. There was only one disturbing note in the beautiful picture. A chance remark of my hostess, the physician, disclosed that several children could not be seen because "they were in isolation."

"Some contagious disease," I asked. "No," said the lady, "but they are little thieves, so we must keep them away from the other children."

I was dumfounded. I saw before me the schoolmaster Tolstoy as portrayed by Ernest Crosby. One of the children in his school had stolen something. The other children had denounced him as a thief and asked their teacher to punish him. The teacher and teacher agreed that a sign bearing the inscription "Thief" should be hung on the offender's neck.

While putting the string over the boy's head Tolstoy was struck by the look in the child's eyes—a look of humiliation and dumb accusation. No, not the child was the offender. It was he, Tolstoy, and the other children—all of society—that could commit such a cruel thing, to brand the child a thief.

Never again thereafter was a child sequestered in Tolstoy's school. Yet there, in great freedom, revolution, peace, were children who had been isolated, branded thieves and continuously spoken of as "moral defectives." I was disturbed, puzzled. I was, I would not let that obscure the beautiful picture I saw in the Hotel Europe.

A little later I was visited by a woman I had known in America for many years. With her husband and some sons she had fled to the Russian revolution. She had participated in the great October days and since then she had been engaged in various work, but her main interest was in the care of children. At the time of her visit she was matron in a boarding school for girls. The woman related to me much about her work, the children, and the life of the school. I tried to secure the necessary things for her school. Her story was so utterly at variance with what I had seen in the Hotel Europe that I could not credit it. Yet I knew my friend to

GERMAN PROPERTY MAY SERVE AS TRADE COLLATERAL

Part of Goods Held by Alien
Custodian Would Be Used
Under Plan to End Tangle.

SCHEME OFFERED
BY COL. MILLER

Seized Estates or Trusts
Would Be Protected Against Confiscation by Tax in Germany.

By DAVID LAWRENCE,
A Special Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

(Copyright 1922.)

WASHINGTON, March 30.—America's problem with respect to German property held in the United States is growing acute.

To give back the property to the German owners, it has just been discovered, would mean virtual confiscation by the German Government and the proceeds would go into the national treasury either for the payment of war debts or for other purposes.

Col. Thomas W. Miller, Alien Property Custodian, who has been working on the tangle for months has presented his plan to President Harding out of which it is expected a policy soon will be evolved.

Objects Sought in Plan.

Here are the essential objects which it is sought to attain by the plan:

1. American citizens whose relatives lost their lives in the Lusitania or who lost property at the hands of Germany during the war shall be paid.

2. German citizens who have small estates which have been seized by the American Government shall not be made to suffer unduly but should have their property back as soon as possible and the German Government shall be required to agree not to apply its severe tax laws to this particular property.

3. Instead of permitting the German Government to confiscate through taxation the bulk of estates held by the Alien Property Custodian, the American Government shall use a portion of the proceeds to pay American claims and a portion as collateral for a huge trading corporation which shall help re-establish commercial relations between the United States and Germany. One hundred million dollars of German assets held by the American Government would be sufficient basis, it is calculated, for a billion dollar credit. There are German owners with a hundred million dollars of property here who have expressed a strong desire to have their assets pooled in such a quasi-Government corporation which would operate under the Edge law.

First Official Proposal.

While the Harding administration is not committed to any specific proposals and is still welcoming suggestions, it is true that the plan submitted by Col. Miller is the first official solution which has been offered.

The United States Government is of course, opposed to confiscation of the German property and does not intend to sanction any such scheme. The new plan, therefore, attempts to give approximately equal portions of the German assets which would go to the German Government instead of to its citizens. Copies of the German tax law have been received here from Germany. The Allied Governments are not making any American comparable to it. The Germans are actually taxing capital and are applying such percentages as to make it possible for them to take away from the German owners the largest part of any property returned to them by the American Government.

Anticonfiscation Policy.

The theory back of the anticonfiscation policy of the United States Government always has been that individuals should not be made to suffer for the acts of war of their Government, but if the United States were to return tomorrow without condition all the property seized from Germans, the Allied Governments and citizens of allied countries would immediately be benefited while German owners would be hurt, as would American citizens whose claims against Germany were known.

The working of the German tax law is unique. All the property or capital brought into Germany is subject to two separate taxes—one an "empire need tax" which goes to pay allied reparations, and the other a general capital tax for Government expenses. In one case the value of the mark is taken at about 15 marks per dollar, as of July, 1919, and in the other 48 marks to the dollar, as of December, 1919.

How Tax System Works.

To explain actually how the system works, it may be supposed, for instance, that $10,000 worth of German property was seized by the American Government and held during the war. The difference between $10,000 valued at 15 marks to the dollar and $10,000 valued today at the present rate

FOREIGN-BORN WHITES HERE WERE 13.3 PER CENT IN 1920

Germany Led List of Countries Claimed as Native Land of Residents of St. Louis.

FOREIGN-BORN white persons constituted 13.3 per cent of the population of St. Louis at the time of the 1920 census, according to a special report of the United States Census Bureau.

Of the 772,427 inhabitants of St. Louis, as shown by that census, 103,222 were foreign-born and 95,716 of these were 21 years old or more, while 56,430 of them were naturalized.

Germany led the list, as the native country of 30,689 residents of St. Louis, and Russia, Ireland, Italy, Hungary, Austria and Poland followed in order.

The table carrying the statistics is:

Total foreign-born white		Foreign-born white, 21 years and over
Country of birth	Number	Total	Number
All countries	103,222	95,716	56,430
Germany	30,689	29,629	15,303
Russia	13,421	10,853	5,022
Ireland	9,544	9,167	4,636
Italy	8,827	8,451	4,144
Hungary	6,827	6,451	3,064
Austria	5,234	4,851	2,381
Poland	4,428	4,045	1,954

Other countries	1,068	829	388

The classification "Not Naturalized" comprises alien persons who had taken out their naturalization papers only and persons whose citizenship status was not ascertained.

The bureau estimates that of the total white population of St. Louis, 21 years old or more, 20.6 per cent were foreign-born, and 12.2 per cent were naturalized foreign-born.

of exchange, which is 300 marks to the dollar, or 3,000,000 marks, would be 2,870,000 marks. Now, examining the tax schedule of the Germans under the tax law, we find that all amounts above 100,000 marks are to be given to the German Government, as the tax rate is 100 per cent. This would mean that the German owner would be entitled to keep only 120,000 marks, or at the present rate of exchange of 300 marks to the dollar, he would have approximately $400 out of his original $1,200.

This absurd conclusion is more admitted by German officials, some of whom have discussed the situation with the United States Government. The Germans say they could change their tax laws, but they could not, of course, make them apply to all German property, and could hardly change the severe rates of exchange so that in the end the bulk of the property held in the German owner's hands would be given to the United States Government, and be used for its expenses or be paid in reparations to the allies.

Alien Custodian's Plan.

There is, moreover, another phase of the matter. American claimants against Germany realize that the German Government will not soon pay them and unless the United States Treasury is to be asked to pay claims which Germany herself should pay, it would be to ask him what which can be used at all to satisfy the claims are embraced in the German property held in America.

The American Government knows that to pursue the policy of applying the equivalent of the German tax laws on this side of the Atlantic would mean hardship on many small owners. So the Alien Property Custodian has suggested that a divestiture of the German-owned estates or trusts valued at $10,000 or under. The official figures show that there are approximately 29,689 trusts valued under the $10,000 limit. The total value of the trusts held by the American Government is about 2600 in all, but they represent a total value of $296,000,000, as against $13,000,000, which is spread out among 29,689 owners.

Would Help Small Owners.

The policy proposed by Col. Miller would on the one hand alleviate the suffering of the German owners who have small estates tied up and would on the other hand give the American Government's property to the German owners, thus establishing a quasi-Government corporation the German owners of even these 29,689 estates would not be deprived permanently of their property. They would be given a portion of their estates back and the remainder would be converted into stocks or bonds in the new credit corporation, out of the profits of which it is estimated American claims against Germany could easily be paid. It would take some years to reap enough profit to pay all the claims, but the American Treasury could anticipate the profits of the corporation by paying claims in advance.

The amount of the American claim against Germany will not be known until the American-German Claims Commission, soon to be set up by treaty with Germany, gets into operation. It is estimated that the sum will not amount to more than $300,000,000, though nobody knows exactly from historical experience, which shows that the final adjudication cuts the claims down materially. In any event, the amount of German property held in America is more than sufficient to permit the return of estates under $10,000 and something even higher and still have enough left to establish the credit corporation and give back some percentage to the owners of estates above $10,000.

Austrians' Property.

As for Austrian property, or rather the assets of citizens of the former Austro-Hungarian empire, which now has been divided into Poland, Rumania, Serbia and Czechoslovakia, the claims of American citizens are considered relatively negligible. So it is proposed to give back the property seized from nationals

BOSSES COSTLY TO KANSAS CITY, SAYS HYDE IN SPEECHES

"Machines Just Now Having

Declares; 3500 Persons
Hear Him Speak.

SAYS REED SHEDS

Senator Lists 25 Charges
Against Police Administration, and Issues Challenge to Hyde.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 30.—Gov. Hyde last night addressed two meetings, attended by 3500 persons, in the municipal campaign.

"There is no such thing as a political proposition which does not find its way to the hearthstone," the Governor said. "There is not and never has been a more clean-cut moral issue than that which faces Kansas City in this campaign."

Again meeting the Democratic condemnation of the Police Department, the Governor declared that, while some of the individual officers may have been overzealous, "never up to this minute has anybody ever charged that they have protected crime."

"The great big issue of this campaign is whether the movement for clean, unbossed government and politics shall march on to the city hall now and ultimately to all of America."

"Taxes have increased greatly under the boss system and they are not spent for the benefit of the homes. The figures show that it costs 30 cents more to live in $100 to maintain Tom and Joe than it does to maintain the schools of this city."

"The machine organizations are not maintained out of thin air, and just now pickings are a little short for the gang; besides, there is not a protected life in Kansas City."

Reference to Reed.

"He spills all over the scenery a lot of bright tears for 'bootleggers' and the crooks," said the Governor in a speech in the afternoon, referring to Senator Reed. "It seems likely the Senator thinks that 'ordinary criminals' should go unpunished. I would like to ask him what is the difference between ordinary crimes and extraordinary crimes."

Matthew A. Foster, a Republican nominee for the mayoralty, addressed the 200 women in the afternoon, recalled that Senator Reed had condemned the national leaders of the Democratic party, including former President Wilson and Senator Oscar Underwood, and then added: "The memory of those staunch Democrats will live long after Senator Reed is dead—damned and forgotten."

He said that under the Democratic administration here the Police Department and the Hospital and Health Board have been made political footballs and pledged that in the event of his election they would be made real constructive forces in the community.

"I now denounce him as a dangerous law, a perpetual citizen," said Foster, referring to Reed.

Reed Delivers Challenge.

Citing a series of 25 charges, in which he declared the Police Department under Matthew Foster had abused its power and in at least two instances "bootlegging" under persons, Reed, in a speech last night, delivered what he termed an open reply and a challenge to Gov. Hyde. The charges were made in two addresses.

After reading the list of charges, he declared: "I charge, and am ready to prove, that these murders and beatings, the homes that have been invaded, have been the direct result of the orders of the Police Commissioners appointed by Gov. Hyde."

"Gov. Hyde does not deny a single one of these charges. His worst charge is that there are bosses in Kansas City and in this he has tried to divert attention from the outrages of the Police Department."

Reed said, "He talks about bosses in Kansas City. Mr. Hyde seems to regard himself as the boss of the State of Missouri in general, and now appears the self-constituted boss of Kansas City."

"The Governor sneers and flouts the Constitution. He comes prating of law enforcement and with almost sacreligious lips quotes the appeal of Abraham Lincoln for the enforcement of the law."

"Finally the Governor says that if he is impeached he will walk out of office the proudest citizen the people ever want before the people. The day of impeachment will be a great day. The Governor will be proud and the people will be happy."

Frank P. Walsh, former Kansas City attorney, arrived in Kansas City yesterday to enter the city campaign in behalf of the Democratic candidates. He addressed business men at noon today.

INEXPERIENCED POLITICIANS PITTED AGAINST THE BOSSES IN KANSAS CITY CAMPAIGN

Republicans Hope Women Will Save Day for
Matt A. Foster, Their Candidate for Mayor;
Frank H. Cromwell Democratic Aspirant.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., March 30.—Inexperienced politicians, women and men, and at least as far as leadership is concerned, virtually all of them Republicans, are pitted in the present municipal campaign in Kansas City against practical politicians and bosses of the Democratic and Republican party organizations. The contest appears to be very close with probably a slight advantage with the practical politicians, though, aside from the whole ten-up boys, there is no overconfidence evidenced at either headquarters.

It is doubtful if there ever has been a campaign in Missouri with more peculiar results involved situation. Upon its result hinges, at least temporarily, the political life of the most strongly entrenched and smoothest working boss-controlled political organization in the State.

Four Republican Candidates.

The Republican candidate is Matt A. Foster, former President of the Kansas City Board of Police Commissioners, who was nominated at a convention participated in only by the so-called anti-boss Republicans. The Democratic candidate is Frank H. Cromwell, a business man, nominated at a convention admittedly controlled by the Democratic bosses of Kansas City. Foster is a wealthy man, a silk-stocking, so to speak, and the Republicans admit is not of a type to attract a personal following. Cromwell is what is known as a hail fellow well met on all occasions, and is very popular.

To present clearly the present political situation in Kansas City, it is necessary to recapitulate some political history of the town.

In the first place, Kansas City takes its politics very seriously, probably more seriously than any other Missouri city. A campaign here always becomes bitter and arouses the most intense feeling. During the campaign the newspapers devote many columns of space to the speeches and to attacks on the candidates, and politics is talked on every side.

Tom Marks Seldom Lost.

For many years prior to 1920 the Republican organization was in control of Tom Marks, a political boss, who had a dependable group of followers, and who ruled his organization to win elections, but who ruled in such a way that when the Republican party locally, as usually, gave the Republican organization controlled by Marks was in good standing with the Democratic organization in power. The Republican ticket might lose, but Marks seldom lost.

The Democratic organization has consisted and does consist of two factions, the "goats" controlled by Tom Pendergast, and the "rabbits," controlled by Joe Shannon. The two leaders have fought in the preliminaries of each campaign for control of the party organization, but with the preliminaries out of the way, the two factions unite and elect the ticket and divided the jobs.

As an outgrowth of the Progressive party movement, there developed in Kansas City in 1920 a Republican organization known as the "anti-bosses." It was popular and won, the anti-boss element capturing control of the local Republican organization.

Marks Keeping Quiet.

Usually over-the-hill bosses do not remain overthrown very long, and Marks did what any boss would have done in the circumstances. He remained very quiet, keeping his personal following in the background, biding his time until the "reformers" should go to sleep as political reformers do in time, when he would quietly slip back into power.

The Kansas City situation developed difficulties, however. Usually a boss does not remain out of power more than a couple of years, but when Marks and his followers looked the situation over this spring they decided the time had not come for Marks to attempt to step back into leadership, and he made no effort to control the nomination for Mayor.

The anti-boss organization called its convention and Marks did not have a delegate in it. He offered no opposition to the nomination of Foster, the choice of Gov. Hyde and the Kansas City Star. He has since maintained a silence and has taken no part in the campaign personally, though he is close following the campaign and is working for the Democratic ticket, seemingly on the theory that bosses must stick together.

Gronwell Nominated.

In the selection of the Democratic nominee there was a different situation. There had been no revolt against Pendergast and Shannon. They looked over the field, weighed the strength of the various candidates suggested, and the convention they controlled nominated Cromwell, who was put forward only a day or so before the convention by Shannon.

With Foster the Republican nominee.

Another interesting feature of the campaign is the support of Foster by State Senator David M. Proctor of Kansas City. Foster and Proctor are bitter personal enemies, but Proctor also is a candidate for the nomination for United States Senator, and is maintaining his record of the attitude of Dickey has interested politicians over the entire State. Dickey, it is expected, will be a candidate for the Republican nomination for the United States Senate and as a senator will maintain a record of party regularity. Thus the Journal is supporting the ticket, but it is said that Dickey, though a very wealthy man, has contributed nothing to the campaign fund. His paper is not without excited about Foster, is not "tearing his shirt" for him, but it is supporting him.

Another interesting feature of the campaign is the support of Foster by State Senator David M. Proctor of Kansas City. Foster and Proctor are bitter personal enemies, but Proctor also is a candidate for the nomination for United States Senator, and is maintaining his record of

STAR OF "LOHENGGRIN" IS CONDUCTOR KNOCH

Orchestra Leader's Genius
Strikes Fire From Meager and Inept Material.

By RICHARD L. STOKES.
THE divinity of Wagner's art is no longer debatable, now that it has been seen to burst the elements of a production which in the orchestra was a sketch and on the stage a parody. This evidence of immortality was supplied by an essay at "Lohengrin" which was made last night at the Odeon by the San Carlo opera troupe. Thanks to the keen baton of Ernest Knoch—who bears a most singular resemblance to early portraits of the immortal Richard, and who conducted like an exile restored to his native land—the music did now and then emerge like Milton's archangel, in "the excess of glory obscured."

The text was sung, not in the original German, but in the soft speech of the Po. This Italianate version was delivered by singers whose mettle lies in "Il Trovatore" and "Rigoletto." The orchestral music, intended to bear on its flooding torrent both action and declamation, was dried to a trickling brook with a band of only 25 pieces. Wagner planned his orchestra on a scale demanding about 70 string instruments; here there were but 11, with other departments skeletonized in proportion.

Among the principals we were reminded by surely the drollest effigy of Lohengrin that ever stalked the stage: with the staidest and most unusual of Ortrud; with a Count Frederick of Troland whose chief peculiarity was a scowl; with King Henry of a certain abashed and uneasy majesty; and with an Elsa whose histrionic apparatus consists in a stiff stride or so, a few stock gestures and a disturbance of the features which serves equally well as a smile or a death-pang.

St. Louisians in Chorus.

The chorus was recruited to a total of more than 60 by the addition of St. Louis singers from German vocal organizations; and it was noteworthy that the most slowly choral work of the evening was due to the professional male singers of the company. The newcomers added gratifyingly to the quality and volume of the ensembles; but naturally, with a limited appearance on the stage, not to the grace and ease of the native chorus. The house was crowded to the last seat, and the audience, beginning in an enthusiastically receptive mood, seemed gradually to weary. The most discouraging feature also was that many persons departed in a state of perfect disenchantment with Wagner in general and "Lohengrin" in particular. The performance concluded at 10:15, and before midnight. The management, having suffered the immortal Prelude to be wrecked through the admission of late-comers during its performance, upon the bureau of the house, it played again before the second act.

If the production had a star, it was no one on the stage, but Conductor Knoch in the orchestra pit. In a blaze of inspiration, he wrought wonders with the meager and amateur forces at his disposal. His playing of the Prelude and of the introduction to the third act form the bright particular memories of the evening. He did admirable work in handling the chorus, especially the "Prayer" in the first act, followed by the chorus of victory, and the big ensemble ending the second act. The famous "Bridal Chorus" however, was delivered with little jubilation of rhythm.

Some Tragi-Comedies.
To enumerate the defects of the performance would be to write an entire comedy of errors. There was the duel between Lohengrin and Ortrud, in which the night's war was pushed at each other with their shields several times without striking a blow, after which Frederick, without apparent cause, decided suddenly to retire upon the stage. There was the hitch-step—like Lord Dunsany's—with which the nobles marked off an arena for the combat. There were Lohengrin's bleat address to the swan, the stolid recitation of the chorus, as if at a rehearsal, during the first act; Ortrud's turning her back on the King after her presentation; and other flaws numerous enough to fill a page.

Mme. Anna Fritz, in the role of Elsa, was advertised as a "guest" artist, although she appears to have been singing regularly with the company on the road. She is noted as one of the beauties of the operatic stage, visually, with the mightiest of voices, she was all that the part demanded. Her voice is charming; but luscious with the voices of artists like Mme. Gaddi in the role of Ortrud, she had an organ less languid and expressive. She could scarcely be said to act, unless we admit that after all Wagner's Elsa was a bit sympathetic and obtuse. But Mme. Fritz did quicken the tempo to a certain vivacity during the bridal scene, when Elsa makes upon her husband the fatal demand for a revelation of his name.

Today's schedule consists of a matinee performance of "Carmen," with Nina Frascini as the heroine, and a presentation of "Rigoletto" this evening, with Josephine Lechese, coloratura soprano, making her debut here and her only appearance during the engagement. The role of Gilda, Joseph Royer will be the hunchback, and Giuseppe Agostini the Duke.

BRITISH VIEW OF HOW WE RECEIVE LECTURERS

New York Correspondent of London Paper Calls U. S.
"Clover Land" for Speakers.

Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.
LONDON, March 11.—The reception accorded in America to Mrs. Margaret Asquith and other English lecturers this winter has prompted some gentle sarcasm at the expense of America and of the lecturers. Mrs. Asquith's failure to identify Jane Addams evoked some remarks from the New York correspondent of the London Star, who says that "if Jane Addams had lived in England, Mrs. Asquith Wilson would have known about her."

"Interviewing Delightful," "Interviewing Mrs. Asquith has been delightful," he continues. "Her view of the yellow press is that it must be read by the Chinese. 'Was Lloyd George as popular as ever?' 'I wonder,' said Margot, with a smile through her cigarette smoke, which, by the way, is criminal in Kansas even for men."

Of the audiences, the Star correspondent says that instead of reading books for themselves, they learn by ear. "The results must be shallow," he adds, "but at least it means that a very real sense of the whole nation never leaves school. It is always trying to pick up knowledge, but most of the knowledge is and must be superficial."

He calls the United States the "clover land" for English lecturers, and says that agents there have done "an excellent wholesale trade in Philip Gibbs, who usually goes to America with some new European country in his pocket as a rule ruined, broadly speaking, by the Big Four. Ladies listen to him with rapt attention and unwrapped shoulders. It is generally said that he is the only knight of the Garter too modest to wear it."

"Oliver Lodge was the smartest of all visitors, for he talked not only about the old world, but about the new world, but about the next world of which he established a monopoly. Wherever he wandered, therefore, he found the streets paved with gold."

G. H. Chesterton was referred to by the correspondent as "our highest consultant" and John Galsworthy was reported as quietly meandering among universities, while H. G. Wells was credited with a certain sensitivity which restrained him from undue mixing.

PSYCHOLOGIST ADVANCES NOVEL THEORY OF DREAMS

English Scientist Rejects Claim of Psycho-Analysts, Saying Dreams
Guard Sleep.

Correspondence of the Associated Press.
LONDON, March 11.—Dr. William Brown, medical specialist and head of the department of psychology in King's College, University of London, has propounded a novel theory of dreams. He rejected the claim of the psycho-analysts that dreams are always significant, and that every part of them has a meaning which must be looked for in primitive desires lurking in the subconscious mind. He gave them a much simpler significance.

"The function of a dream is to guard sleep," he said before the Institute of Hygiene. "In sleep, desires, cravings, anxieties, the memories of earlier days, which are the lower and fundamental elements of the mind, well up and strive toward consciousness, while the main personality is in abeyance. If they reach consciousness, sleep is at an end, but the dream, which is a sort of intermediary form of consciousness, intervenes, and makes the impulse innocuous so that sleep persists. This theory covers the entire ground of all types of dreams."

ST. LOUISAN HAS WASHINGTON PICTURE SIGNED BY REYNOLDS

W. Tudor Wilkinson Buys Canvas
for $45 in Curiosity Shop of Paris.

(Copyright, 1932.)

PARIS, March 10.—That a portrait of George Washington exists, reputed to be painted by Sir Joshua Reynolds, which was painted from the Dispatch correspondent by William Tudor Wilkinson, formerly of St. Louis, who has an old house in Paris, once occupied by Mme. de Maitreuil, Wilkinson picked up the picture for $45 in an old bric-a-brac shop in Montmartre. He says he has been offered $50,000 for the portrait.

It is signed and on the back is an inscription in Sir Joshua's own handwriting: "President U. S. A. Washington, J. Reynolds, 1791." Wilkinson died Dec. 4, 1795. The portrait, which was painted from imagination and descriptions of Washington, is unlike familiar pictures of the first President, whom Reynolds never saw. The features are rather those of a man of the world, and the general expression of the face gives an impression of weakness. Paris art experts confirm the authenticity of the painting, which Wilkinson intends to take to London to be restored.

Wilkinson, who had a wide acquaintance in St. Louis, went overseas in the army aviation service in 1915, and has lived in Paris since the war.

POLITICIANS WITHOUT EXPERIENCE PITTED AGAINST K. C. BOSSES

Party regularity. He speaks several times a day, says nothing favorable of Foster, but lambasts the Democrats, which is probably more effective than if he praised Foster.

The many elements entering into the Kansas City campaign made very difficult a forecast as to its outcome. On the face of the evidence, the Democrats should win by from 3000 to 2000, but this makes no allowance for the uncertainty as to the effect of the Republican "law enforcement" campaign upon the women voters. If the big mass of the voters believe, Kansas City has been cleaned up by Foster and made a better, safer place in which to live, the 1000 to 2000 advantage which the Democrats seem to have would be wiped out easily.

A week ago the betting in Kansas City was 9 to 5 that Cromwell would win. Today the odds are 10 to 1, and one who will give odds on Cromwell. The Democrats admit they have suffered a slump during the last week, but insist that Reed's speeches will overcome it, and that Cromwell will win.

It would seem that Cromwell should derive a strong lead from the fact that experienced politicians are supporting him. It is the theory of the practical politician that more elections are won on registration day than on election day, and because the Democratic machine was working well on registration day, the Democrats gained an advantage in the registration. The organization, including a lot of the 4000 city employees, secured the town and put on the registration books the names of just about all the men and women who could be counted on to vote the Democratic ticket. The Republicans had virtually no working organization and did not get the full Republican vote registered.

Registration Shows Democratic Gain.
One influential member of the Republican anti-boss organization told a Post-Dispatch reporter that the advantage gained by the Democrats in registration was close to 5000. It is probable, however, that even 5000 was a high estimate.

In 1920 Harding carried Kansas City by about 5000. Some of the Republican county ticket was elected by a majority as low as 500. Even the Republicans admit that thousands of Democrats either voted the Republican ticket in 1920 or did not vote, and that there is no reason to hope for those votes for the Republican ticket this year.

The portion of the Marks organization, which is not supporting the Democratic ticket, is doing virtually nothing for the Republican ticket. This, however, works both ways. Marks' active support for the Republican ticket would undoubtedly cost many votes of independent Republicans and independent Democrats, who will support it with Marks' sulking. Some Democrats said Marks' failure to give the Republican ticket active support would cost it at least 5000 votes. Antihoss Republicans placed the number at not to exceed 500.

50,000 Arrests Cited

The Democrats are also counting on the 50,000 arrests by Foster policemen to aid the Democratic ticket. Most of these arrests were for trivial traffic violations and petty misdemeanors. The Democrats said that in most of them a Police Court summons possibly should have been issued, but that arrests should not have been made. They believe many of those arrested will show their resentment by voting against Foster.

Admitting the apparent advantage of the Democrats, the Republicans say they are certain that the women of Kansas City will save the day for Foster, believing that women are for strict law enforcement, and that they will vote for Foster in the belief that he has made Kansas City a cleaner town.

CHILD IN RUSSIA HAS FALLEN INTO EVIL DAYS; EMMA GOLDMAN TELLS WHY

That will be best clarified by illustration. Every crèche, boarding school, reformatory—each, every institution where children and grown people live, is entitled to as many food and clothing rations as the number of its inmates.

All institutions depend on the Central Distributing Department in Petrograd, the Petrokommu, in Moscow, the Moskommu, etc., for their supplies. Numerous orders signed and countersigned by scores of technicians must be secured, for everything needed by a given institution.

The technicians systematically deliver matters until they receive some bribe. It becomes necessary to get orders for more than the actual number of the population in the institution, so that some "extras" may be left for bribes as well as for the hungry friends of the "technician manager" of the institution in charge of the supplies.

For instance, the school of my friend had 63 children. All former matrons had added a number of the famous names—"dead souls"—to the actual total of the children in the schools. In return for the extra rations thus secured and used as a bribe, the matrons were assured quick service. Having in this manner provided themselves with extra fluence" in the various departments, it did not matter if the managers in charge of the schools sabotaged their work, neglected and even abused the children or often speculated with the provisions obtained for the inmates. They had "friends on high."

JUVENILE DELINQUENCY ATTRIBUTED TO POVERTY

Judge Garesche Says Drive to Aid Starving Children of St. Louis Should Be Conducted.

Vice and misconduct of children are due chiefly to poverty and hence to public negligence, in the opinion of Judge Vital Garesche of the Juvenile Court and the Court of Domestic Relations who spoke Tuesday night at a meeting of the Goldmans-Grosby post of the American Legion.

"I wish," he said, "I could persuade some of the men who are leading drives for foreign poor to conduct a drive for 500 barrels of flour for the starving children of St. Louis. I wish I could take some of our ministers from their comfortable churches down to our slums and show them where they could do a real missionary work."

"If we don't nip juvenile delinquency in the bud we have the nucleus for the adult criminals that are crowding our jails."

"In the 18 months I sat on the criminal bench I sent 615 adults to penal institutions. When I saw more boys, who had never before been in trouble, come before me and acknowledge brazenly such crimes as burglary and highway robbery, I was shocked, and did not see the real reason for it until I became interested in the Juvenile Court."

Parental Indifference.
"I do not know how to account for all our juvenile delinquency except by parental indifference, and more than anything else, poverty. A girl of 15 was brought before me recently, charged with cursing and striking her mother. She told me that cursing was the only kindness she ever got—that was all she heard at home. I found that her mother and two sisters were immoral. What else can you expect of a girl brought up in such environment?"

"Juvenile delinquency, in the main, is not the product of pure cussedness, but the result of diseased minds and diseased bodies. Our principal work is to cure this disease, and as soon as a child is brought to our attention he gets a careful medical examination."

Examinations now are conducted by volunteer specialists, but, through the aid of the Rockefeller Foundation and the city, defective children will be examined and treated in a psychiatric clinic which we hope will begin functioning in the next 20 days.

Cases of Boys "Bumming School."
Judge Garesche described two cases of boys "bumming school," whom he found to be suffering from eight or nine ailments. He told of the juvenile ward in the city hospital, and the various corrective and educative institutions available to the Juvenile Court.

He said that when he became Judge of that court two and a half years ago he found that children were kept in the House of Detention as long as four months without outdoor exercise or recreation. He arranged to let them use the municipal swimming pools, buying 60 bathing suits from a downtown store with $20 from the Mayor's contingent fund. A playground also was built across Clark avenue from the house, at Fourteenth street, through the help of various agencies.

He said he noticed that children came into court horribly dirty, and was told that there were no facilities for washing clothes, and the shower baths were all out of order. Washing apparatus was installed and the shower baths were repaired at once.

Navy Beans and Bread.
He said that the first dinner he saw there comprised a plate of navy beans, an inch-square piece of pork and a hunk of dry bread. A balanced menu was made up by a doctor and orders were issued that if there was any discrimination between the children's and the attendants' tables it was to be in favor of the children.

With reference to the recent publicity regarding organized vice in the schools, I want to say that offenders in the Juvenile Courts are few," said Judge Garesche. "The majority of children brought into court are moral delinquents in the sense of committing acts of dishonesty. It is unfortunate but true, however, that the majority of the sex offenders are girls and they constitute the hardest problem we have to handle."

TWO BABIES ARE RETURNED
Illinois Welfare Department Takes Infants From Woman.
By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, March 30.—Two babies from Mrs. Helen Libby, who declares that she came into possession of the infants through advertisements in Chicago papers, were brought back from Logansport, Ind., today by Mrs. Grace Badger, agent of the Illinois Department of Welfare.
The babies were ordered returned to Illinois authorities yesterday following a petition filed by Dr. Charles Virden of the Illinois Welfare Department in the Circuit Court at Logansport in which he alleged that they were dependents of the State.
Mrs. Libby, who is the wife of a traveling salesman employed at a Chicago firm, told the authorities of the Indiana city that she took the children because she loved babies.

KIDNAPER SUSPECT IS RELEASED

By the Associated Press.
WOODBURY, N. J., March 30.—Miss Esther Tannenbaum of Camden, arrested Tuesday in connection with the disappearance of 7-year-old Ida Kramer from her home here Saturday, was released from the Gloucester County Jail last night. Prosecutor Jess A. Lanigan ordered the release after he had investigated the woman's statements that she was not in Woodbury the day the child disappeared.

The Prosecutor's office now is working on a theory that the child was kidnapped by a demented woman.

THE SCIENTIFICALLY BUILT WATCH

7 1/2 Line Carved Case, Green or White Gold
Price $10.00The Movement
No larger than a dime

And the smallest watch movement made in America. This lovely and tiny masterpiece of Waltham watchmaking represents American horological genius at its supreme achievement.

The movement contains all those exclusive features which have afforded to the name of Waltham, "The master watchmaker of the world."

Platinum and diamond settings alone are worthy of this excellent watch movement—although we have shown it here dressed in a plain gold case. It is absolutely reliable. An exquisite adornment, but also a dependable time-keeper. It is a gift any woman might be most proud to own.

There is no tiny movement built that competes with it in horological value.

Ask your jeweler to show you this incomparable little watch—or write us.

In a crowd protect yourself from throat germs

Riding in the crowded car, going along the busy street, sitting in the stuffy office, theatre or school, you are bound to inhale the germs of disease. These germs lodge in the soft tissues of the mouth and throat and if unchecked, may develop into a dangerous ailment.

Formamint, the germ-fighting throat tablet, can be conveniently used at any time or in any place you may be. At the first sign of a sore throat, or when you are exposed to germs, take a tablet and let it dissolve slowly in your mouth. Can be beneficially taken every half hour until throat is relieved.

Formamint mixes its powerful, pleasant tasting antiseptic with the saliva, bathing the inflamed membranes continuously; combats the germs and keeps them at a safe minimum.

The tablets are so convenient to carry with you, that they can be used unobtrusively wherever you may be. Buy a package from your druggist today, and be prepared to ward off sore throats, tonsillitis and influenza. Men find them very helpful in easing "familiars" sore throat.

SCHOOL CLOSED FOR MISS M'GUIRE'S FUNERAL

Children at Jefferson School
Contribute Toward Flowers for Principal.

Many pupils of Jefferson School, officials of the Board of Education, and all of the teachers at the school and other educators with whom Miss Sarah A. McGuire had been closely associated in her 41 years of service in the St. Louis public schools, attended the funeral services for Miss McGuire this morning. She had been principal at Jefferson School, at Ninth and Jefferson streets, for the last 23 years. The school was closed all morning. Services were held in an undertaking establishment at 317 Newstead avenue. In the floral offerings about the casket was a large cross, the emblem of the best pupils at the school.

Children Contribute.
The flowers were bought with pennies, nickels and dimes contributed by the Jefferson children and other pupils who had learned to love Miss McGuire for the expert understanding interest she took in them.

Even the smallest of the children brought their pennies to the school yesterday for the flowers. Those in the first grade having $1.80, and those in the second, $1.70. The girls of the school sent a floral design, as did the teachers, while other offerings came from individual members of the Board of Education, and other friends.

Buried in Calvary.
Miss McGuire was buried in Calvary Cemetery, many of those who attended the services in the chapel accompanying the body to the grave. Pallbearers, all long associated with Miss McGuire, were E. E. McLaughlin, principal of Lafayette School, George N. Martin, principal of Farragut School, W. A. Goheen, principal at Shepard School, L. J. Sexton, principal at Lindenwood School, E. H. Church, principal at Higgins, and W. J. Stevens, assistant superintendent of schools.

A memorial meeting of principals and Board of Education officials will be held in the Board of Education building, Saturday, at which time resolutions of respect for Miss McGuire will be drawn up.

U. S. TALKING TOO MUCH ABOUT
OTHERS' DUTIES, BISHOP SAYS

Iowa Clergyman Denies America is Forgetting Own Obligations to Other Countries.

America is talking too much about the rights and duties and obligations of other countries in the world, declared Bishop Harry S. Longueville of Iowa, in his homily address today at St. Louis services at Christ Church Cathedral, and he said that getting our duties to other countries.

"There never was a nation at any period of the world's history which had as direct a road to step out of selfishness and materialism and to lead the world as the United States has today. And how are we responding to this call? Whether it was right for us to reject the League of Nations is not for me to say, but whether it was right because of our own pride and isolation or because of the narrowness of our selfish nationalism, we must not forget the United States has a duty to the world and to the future of mankind. We must not forget that we are a nation of men, and we have not yet developed a national conscience which will work and sacrifice and demand that we take our part in bringing this to pass. We must not develop a national conscience which will work and sacrifice and demand that we take our part in bringing this to pass. We must not develop a national conscience which will work and sacrifice and demand that we take our part in bringing this to pass.

NEWS OF THE DAY IN THE BUSINESS WORLD

PORTLAND, Me.—No formal opening prices have been named by prospective house owners showing much interest in cellar construction, emphasizing the need for a cellar workroom.

WOUNGTOWN, O.—Steel plants in this district are on the high output schedule since the latter part of 1931. Output is 75 per cent of capacity, sheet 65 per cent and pipe over 70 per cent.

PITTSBURGH, Pa.—The Whitney plant of the H. C. Frick Coke Co. is now made ready to resume operations after an idleness of 18 months. Workmen are lighting 250 ovens and preparing others for resumption.

CARPETS. NEW YORK.—It is expected many new and attractive patterns of floor coverings will be shown at the auction sales of the Alexander Smith & Sons Carpet Co. bags which will begin April 2. Buyers from all over the country will attend.

MILK. MINNEAPOLIS, Minn.—Milk is being sold to the consumer in the Twin Cities at 10 cents a quart. State officials declare this is the lowest price in effect in the entire country.

WOOL. PHILADELPHIA, Pa.—Wool prices are being well maintained in this market, the prospective agreement on the tariff schedule having served to stiffen prices.

OIL. ST. PAUL, Minn.—The State oil inspection fee has been cut to 3 cents a gallon. Economy in operating the service resulted in a saving of $70,000 last year and permitted a reduction from 5 cents, the former rate.

LUMBER. SAN FRANCISCO.—A slump in the demand from the Southwest is noticeable in the lumber market. This has lessened shipments, but in general the mills report a steady call from other sections.

HIDES. CHICAGO.—Cowhides are in demand and holders are standing out for better prices.

BOSTON.—One of the larger sole leather manufacturers is reported to have bought a large quantity of heavy packing hides. Demand for sole leathers, however, continues quiet.

COTTONS. LAWRENCE, Mass.—The Arlington Mills have closed down on orders from the management. The Pacific, Everett, Kalama, Acadia and Monomac mills are all affected by the strike which followed the wage reduction of 20 per cent put into effect Monday.

FURS. NEW YORK.—More than 135,000 squirrel skins will be included in the offerings of the New York fur auction sale, which will take place here April 24. Among other furs, 18,000 mink, 85,000 raccoon, 110,000 marmot and 119,000 skunk skins will be offered.

PAPER. BRIDGE, Pa.—The paper mills in this district are working only three to four days a week, but it is possible that this schedule may be increased shortly.

5 PERSONS FALL OFF CAR. Three Injured When They Go Through Open Door at Curve.

Two women and a man were injured at 3:30 a. m. today when they fell from the rear vestibule of an eastbound Page car, the door of which was open, as the car rounded a curve in front of 3516 Lucas avenue.

Miss Agnes Kober, 29, of 1435 North Grand avenue, a saleswoman, was out on the head and her back was injured; Mrs. Sidney Brensted, 39, of 918 North Grand avenue, was out on the face, and Robert West, 28, of 3718 Washington boulevard, was out and bruised on the hands. Two other passengers also fell from the car, but their names were not obtained. Miss Kober said the rear platform was crowded, though there was room forward.

For a time she had been troubled with gas after her evening meal. The distress was most painful after eating potatoes or other starchy foods, of which she was very fond.

Then she started taking two cakes of Fleischmann's Yeast every night between her evening meal and bedtime. She poured about a half cup of boiling hot water over the yeast cakes, stirred them thoroughly, added a little cold water and drank.

She found she could eat anything and sleep splendidly afterward.

Thousands of men and women are finding that Fleischmann's Yeast corrects stomach and intestinal troubles. It promotes the flow of bile and pancreatic juice. Appetite is always kept normal and you are protected against indigestion.

The Crowd, as Well as the Greek Champion, Took a Fall Out of Champion Lewis

Jim Londos Gains Fall on Champion Lewis But Loses Match; Concedes 38 Pounds

Rapid Succession of Headlocks Causes Downfall of Greek Wrestler in First and Third Falls; Lewis Succumbs to Arm Scissors and Wrist Lock in Second—Titleholder Near Defeat.

By John E. Wray.

ROBERT FREDERICKS, of San Jose, Cal., who under the name of "Strangler" Lewis for the second time is holding the world's wrestling championship, was almost felled off his throne, last night, at the Coliseum, while 5000 hoarse fans clamored for his overthrow.

Lewis, despite a handicap in his favor of 35 pounds in weight, six inches in height and a horse power or two in sheer strength, not only lost one fall to James Londos, the saved-off little Greek champion, but on more than one occasion was within a couple of inches of losing his crown.

After winning the first fall, Lewis was surprised into quick defeat in the second, but saved himself by capturing the third set. Superior strength and the crushing power of his viselike headlocks finally subdued his lighter but more clever opponent.

The most rabid crowd that ever followed for a sacrifice supported the smaller man throughout the contest. At times the remarks were blood-curdling. During the final fall, when Londos had a punishing grip on Lewis' arm, spectators shouted to the Greek to "Break his arm" or "Twist his neck." Londos almost did both, but could not quite overcome the native strength of his massive foe.

The affair almost appeared to be a mismatch, when Lewis and Londos threw aside their robes and waited for the word. Nevertheless, the Greek gave the champion a tremendous struggle, one that began at two minutes after 10 o'clock and did not cease until nearly half-past 12. Spectators were nearly beginning to wonder about forgotten owl-carriage tables when Lewis leaped savagely at Londos and with four successive headlocks subdued him for the final fall. It had required 1 hour, 54 minutes and 35 seconds of actual wrestling to defend the title.

Lewis Uses Viselike Headlock. Most of the spectators turned out in the expectation of witnessing an exhibition of headlocks. On the part of Lewis these were not disappointed. The California giant relied almost exclusively on this hold and seldom sought any other. How successful he was in this was shown by a figure, which reveal that the champion head-holds during the contest. Eleven of these came in the first fall, one in the second and eight in the third.

In each of the winning falls Lewis' attack gained momentum slowly, the only headlocks being designed to weaken his opponent. When the time came Lewis rushed his foe like a mad bull, gaining headlock after headlock until the resisting power of his game opponent was broken, and he was compelled to turn over.

The rack and the boot were nothing to the "question" which the champion put to his lesser opponent. Lewis applied the headlock with his left arm, the right hand being used to grip the left arm of the other. When the time came Lewis rushed his foe like a mad bull, gaining headlock after headlock until the resisting power of his game opponent was broken, and he was compelled to turn over.

Story of the Match, Move by Move

The match began at two minutes after 10 o'clock, and the subsequent action was as follows:

10:10—Both men worked slowly. Londos avoided Lewis' clutch at the waist.

10:11—Lewis twice fell to the mat after leaping at Londos for a head hold.

10:12—Lewis suddenly dropped to the mat and tripped Londos, but the latter broke free. Both got up, Londos backing away.

10:14—Londos gained a jiu jitsu arm hold, holding Lewis' arm against the elbow joint. Lewis sank to the floor.

10:15—Lewis jerked free from the arm hold.

10:16—Londos broke a headlock by rising from the floor and lifting the 230-pound Lewis bodily. He then dropped out of an arm hold.

10:18—Londos went on top, but Lewis shook him off and pursued him around the ring. Lewis dove, but missed and fell to the floor.

10:20—Londos broke a painful arm hold.

10:22—Londos punished Lewis with another jiu jitsu grip. Lewis was slowly twisted to the mat and was 100 feet close to defeat when he broke loose.

10:24—Londos broke a wing lock and a head scissors in succession.

10:26—Londos gained a jiu jitsu hold and Lewis was punished badly.

10:28—After breaking a wrist lock, then a face lock, Londos fell into a leg scissors hold. He showed his strength by again lifting his 230-pound foe bodily, breaking the elbow joint. Lewis sank to the floor.

10:30—Lewis missed a flying head lock and fell to the floor.

10:32—Lewis, enraged, savagely rushed. He leaped and gained a headlock.

10:34—Londos, punished, broke the hold, but Lewis stood on a new one. Londos broke that.

10:36—Londos gained a toe hold, but Lewis squirmed around off the mat and forced the referee to order the men to the center.

10:38—Londos risked his neck in wriggling and flopping loose from a headlock.

10:40—Lewis clamped on a headlock for nearly three minutes, although one time Londos, still in the grip, stood Lewis on his head. He finally broke loose.

10:42—Lewis looked like a fall for Londos when his jiu jitsu arm hold of Lewis' back within three inches of the mat. Lewis tugged and twisted and neck-strained his foe until the Greek's backbone seemed fairly to cry out. Only the tremendous power of Londos and a remarkable and reckless hurling about of his uncontrolled limbs enabled the Greek to break free so many times.

The only other dangerous grip obtained by Lewis during the contest came in the final fall when he introduced a toe hold on Londos which the latter resisted for 2 1/2 minutes before he struggled free. This painful grip was the only one that wrung a moan from the game Greek—he groaned once when Lewis gave a side twist to the ankle.

Not all the unpleasant moments belonged to Londos however. Lewis had his share. Incidentally he was introduced to a novelty that surprised and pained him deeply. It almost defeated him, too.

Londos' specialty was a jiu jitsu grip and appeared exasperatingly painful.

In applying this hold Londos, from a standing position, seized one of Lewis' arms and held against the elbow joint across his own forearm.

There was nothing to be done with this hold, seemingly, but give in. When early in the first fall Londos gained this grip on the astonished champion, Lewis immediately bent backwards and tried to break it.

YALE COACH ASSERTS 3 WEEKS ARE NEEDED TO CONDITION GRID TEAM

By the Associated Press.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 30.—Tail Jones, Yale football coach, in a statement yesterday on college football's present and future status, said: "If the conditioning of football players is to be a serious business, it should be abolished entirely as a menace to the youth of the country."

Speaking on the revision of football activities at Yale, Harvard and Princeton as told in daily publications of these universities, Coach Jones said: "I suggest that the reason for eliminating practice prior to the opening of college and the consequent shortening of the season, there is more to be said in the way of eliminating all winter and spring practice and games before college games and games before college games."

Coach Jones said there was nothing to be gained by forcing coaches to sit in the stands.

Cardinal Batters Have Counted 45 Hits in 3 Games

Athletic Pitchers Have Been Easy for Rickey Sluggers—Mack May Retire.

From a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

ORANGE TEX, March 30.—This present series between the Cardinals and the Athletics may bring forth a totally unexpected development. On form, the result of the series was practically a foregone conclusion and the condition of the playing of his team has not helped him much. Connie is boss of the club on the executive as well as the playing end and it may be he believes the double burden is too great for one man.

Unless unexpected improvement is shown the Athletics will be further immured in the cellar this season than ever before. In three games their pitchers have been walked by the Cardinals for 31 runs on 45 hits. Their defense has been steeplelike and their attack conspicuously only by its absence. It is small wonder that Connie weeps when he compares his present aggregation to those deadly efficient machines he was wont to pilot in days gone by.

VISLER GOES HITLESS, BUT TEAM WINS, 11-0

Game Indicates Lee Fohl's Men Will Enter the Pennant Race in Perfect Physical Condition.

By J. Roy Stockton, Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW ORLEANS, La., March 30.—The Cardinals' system of one practice session a day has proved a great success this spring. Players who have been going South for a dozen years declare that they never have seen a team in better condition than the Browns. They are ready. That sums up the situation and little more remains to be said. Only an accident can prevent the Fohls from going to the post.

One advantage the Browns have over most big league clubs is that they have a pitcher who will be a heavy favorite to win one game in each series. That man is Shocker. He appears this spring to be better than ever. He worked for five innings yesterday, or, rather, he tossed with the New Orleans Pelicans. They did not come close to getting a safety off Urban. He fanned five men and gave one base on balls.

He appeared so superior to his opposition that it was no contest, while he was on the mound. Bayne was not far behind Shocker in efficiency, though he had to work harder for results. He was touched for two hits, both of the wallops being hard liners to left, just inside the line. Bill also gave one base on balls, walking the first man to face him. He then stopped, a hot grounder and started a fast double play, by way of showing that he was unperturbed. Bayne fanned five Pelicans.

Pelicans Seem Helpless.
The Yankees also made the Pelicans appear impotent in the games played by the two clubs this spring. The New Orleans team never was as helpless at bat as it was yesterday.

Aside from the pitching, the work of the infield again was the bright part of the afternoon. Heinemann Park has a fine playing field, and Fohl's inner line of defense was like stone wall. Gerber was the bright star of the day. He followed grounders like a hawk and no matter which side they were on or whether they were hot hoppers or teasing rollers, he was in front of them, confident and efficient. Wallie went through the day without the slightest fumble and he had six chances which were bounties. McManus also did his share, racing to either side for his four assists.

There was no work for the outfield. Only two balls traveled that far during the nine innings and those were the two singles off Bayne. That is rare pitching for you. That's the kind of stuff Rube Waddell used to have.

Only 30 Players Remain.
That cuts the squad to 29 players. Another youngster will get the ax in a day or two. He has not been placed as yet and the announcement is withheld. The remaining 29 will remain on the roster until the return to St. Louis April 7, and the four men who must be released by May 15 to reduce the squad to the limit of 25 men will be given a chance to show their stuff in American League company.

For four innings Lefty Jones, from the Pacific coast, held the Browns scoreless. This was due chiefly to reckless base running. The Browns threw caution to the wind and tried to rack on an extra to every hit. Thomas, also a left-hander, pitched the fifth and before the last man was Shocker, Bayne and Davis will continue the dangerous trio, which will face the Cardinals Saturday and Sunday. Vangilder also wants to get in there, but he will not be worked until his foot has healed entirely. Koil will be the relief pitcher for Davis if Vangilder does not work.

Jim Elliott was released yesterday to Terre Haute. Bob Coleman, manager and catcher of that team, who has trained with the Browns, has great faith in the sturdy St. Louis southpaw and predicts that he will be back with Fohl before long.

Golf Stars to Compete.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., March 30.—Jack Hutchinson, British open golf champion, and Joe Kirkwood, Australian open champion, were among yesterday's arrivals to enter the North and South golf championship tournament to be played here Friday and Saturday at 12 holes. Jim Harnes, American open champion, Walter Hagen and many other professional and amateur stars also are here and it is indicated that the largest and fastest field which ever took part in the tournament will start.

Pittsburgh, Pa.—The Pittsburgh hockey team spring a surprise in its final game of the season by defeating the Cleveland team, 8 to 0.

McManus and Williams led with three hits each. One of Hank's was a slow roller that might have been charged as an error for the shortstop. McManus and Williams, however, did some sweet spanking of the ball. The young second sacker poked a single, double and a mighty triple.

Sam Langford ts Box Here Tonight

Veteran Black Dreadnought Fights Bradford Simmons at Sparberg Hall.

Sam Langford, once considered a leading, if not the topmost, heavyweight fighter of his day, and is still mowing them down despite his middle years, will box at Sparberg Hall tonight under the auspices of the Future City Athletic Club. The new quarters of the club were obtained in order to have a simple accommodation for the expected big crowd.

Langford's opponent will be Bradford Simmons, a 210-pound negro, a newcomer to the game, who is said to be promising material. He fought Bill Tate, Memphis this week and gave a fine account of himself. He is also said to have knocked out Jack Thompson, the gutta percha giant whom Harry Wells failed to knock out in a bout here some months ago.

Morris Montford, St. Louis and Johnny Michaelson of Cleveland will box eight rounds at 133 pounds in the semi-final. Young Costello and Kid Taker will appear in the preliminary.

AMATEUR BOXERS MEET AT S. B. A. C. TONIGHT
Twenty-eight amateur boxers will compete in the tournament, which will be held at the South Broadway A. C. tonight and tomorrow. Three special matches are scheduled for tomorrow. The entries follow:

Joe Higgins, Tom Kiny, Walter Horner and Jack Keefe.

The Home of All Work and No Play

By SOPHIE IRENE LOEB.
(Copyright, 1922.)

She was tired and cross and disgruntled—the little wife who quarreled with her husband the last time. He came home for the evening meal. He made a casual remark about a meaningless something and she almost snapped his head off in an answer.

He returned her words in like manner, and pretty soon the mountain came out of the mole hill.

Today they are hopelessly separated. And their lawyers are busy settling disputes as to who shall have the children and when it looks as though it will be a long drawn-out squabble, that may or may not ever be adjusted. But this is what the woman told me, which gives some hope of reconciliation:

"I think I know what was the matter with it all," she said. "Our married life was all work and no play. I was into a rut somehow or other, and I guess John did, too. I thought we ought to make our pile and then spend it. And now look at us! He is miserable and I am miserable."

"And the children are worse off than before. They haven't their father—what they ought to have. And he is a good man at that. But now that I am back home with my people and don't have to work so hard, as the work is all divided, I am beginning to think that most of our trouble was TOO MUCH WORK. I wanted my house too nice—too clean. I prided myself too much on being a fine housekeeper."

"I wanted too much trouble for trifling details. John wasn't quite built that way. He rather resented my scolding him when he left his hat on the parlor grand. Various times in a joking way he would wonder why we had to be so tidy, and at such times I was always exasperated and a quarrel would follow."

"I believe I should have been more lenient. It's true I had a lovely home and kept it immaculate and it gave me a great source of comfort. But I had to work and slave all the time in order to do it."

"Many a time I was too tired to sit down at the dinner table and enjoy my dinner. And I know it did not please John that I acted in this way. He would often say, 'I would be satisfied with much less cooking and not so much fuss if you will let down a bit.' But I thought he was trying to be kind and would have missed all the little things that I did which took so much labor and constant attention."

"Why, as I recall it, I don't believe I went to a theater once or to a party since we were married. The children would go to the movies with their father occasionally, but I would stay at home to do sewing or attend to some things that I acted in this way. At first John would suggest that I let the work go and come along, but I guess he realized after a while that this was useless and gave it up for a bad job waiting to get me away from household cares. I honestly believe that this was most of our trouble."

"And this is the fault of many, many a home—all work and no play. It stands to reason that the care of a household and cooking and children entails endless effort and energy on the part of every woman."

"But to the woman who is, I might say, overdominated it is liable to be very serious, as in the case mentioned above."

"I know of another case where a man made friends outside his home and got into a habit of leaving his home nearly every evening, just because his home was too nice."

He went on the theory that while there is no place like home it was a good thing there isn't. Home to him was too fine to be used. He did not dare do this, that or the other thing in it. He seemed to be run by rules and regulations. He didn't dare smoke for fear the curtains would get black. On returning from work he was not allowed to walk into any room except the kitchen, for fear he would soil the carpets.

He was not permitted to read in the sitting room for fear of rousing it up. This room was for company only, as many a living room is. In a word, there was no freedom. His home was his castle but not his comfort. A place for everybody but the man who made it. So he chose the line of least resistance and quietly got all he could of recreation away from his home."

Almost since the honeymoon days his wife never cared to participate in any of his pleasures outside of his home, and gradually they got into the way of living apart and yet together.

And there is the tragedy found in many a household—the tragedy of everlasting order.

Order is all very well, but an over-supply of it is bound to work havoc in any home.

What difference does it make if the curtains are soiled or if the things are disarranged a bit—while it might mean extra work, it will save worry in the end. Besides, there is such a thing as overdoing it.

Many a woman gets no fun in life by constant digging for dirt in the home. If some of the work is undone and interferes with a bit of pleasure or recreation, let a part of that work go. There is a happy medium that can always be found.

All work and no play will make any home the last place one wants to be.

After-Dinner Tricks

FROM a pack of cards remove the four nines and lay them face down in a pile. Otherwise remove nine other cards and lay them in a pile. On a piece of paper write:

"You chose the nine heart."

Hand the folded slip of paper to someone and tell him to choose one of the hearts. When he has selected one, tell him to read the message. If he chose the pile containing the four nines turn them up, and say: "See, you chose the nine heart."

Then show him there are no nines in the other pile.

If he selects the heart containing nine cards, do not turn them up, but count them, showing him there are exactly nine cards there and only four in the other pile. Thus your prophecy is correct, no matter which he chooses.

Woman Apparently Winning Long Fight for Justice in Which Men Have Failed

Compensation for Arthur Rump Seems Probable as Result of Efforts of Mrs. Brueggeman Despite Red Tape and Precedent That Foiled Men.

By MARGUERITE MARTIN.

LONG with the announcement that the long-pending appeal for compensation for Arthur Rump, 2242 Columbia avenue, injured 28 years ago in the service of the Government, seems about to be settled in his favor with an allotment of $48 a month for the rest of his life, the information that the settlement is due to activity in his behalf by Mrs. Beanie Parker Brueggeman, of St. Louis, President Harding's appointee, head of the U. S. Employees' Compensation Commission.

As is well known, the case has baffled a succession of St. Louis Congressmen and influential friends of the famous invalid. Always efforts in his behalf have come to naught in a maze of red tape, in the dark recesses of a labyrinth in the dread of establishing a precedent or through some other form of procrastination for which congressional action is notorious and more than usually discouraged in this case.

That a woman in office should have succeeded where men have failed seems to this writer an incident worth commending to all interested in observing the functioning of this new thing, the feminine element in politics.

It wasn't entirely through the power of her position that Mrs. Brueggeman succeeded. There was something peculiarly feminine in her method, which made it all the more interesting.

Rump made haste to enlist the interest of Mrs. Brueggeman as soon as he heard of his fellow townsman's appointment to the particular department where he thought his claim should be made. As it happened, when she got to Washington, Mrs. Brueggeman found the bill of claims long since had been referred to a committee beyond her jurisdiction.

Nothing daunted, however, with her knowledge of the case and firm conviction that an injustice was being done, she set to work upon the matter anyway, as a woman, as a human being, or rather, as a woman.

Congressman Newton who previously had been the bill's chief champion in Washington, now declares it with Mrs. Brueggeman's word against the committee's view of the case before the committee and the valiant defense she made under a grilling examination, that brought the bill to its present and final stage, a vote in the House, the outcome of which is entirely hopeful.

Had Accepted Settlement.

It was due to inaction that the case was not disposed of one way or another long ago. Opposition that existed was not all due to politics and procrastination, however. Mrs. Brueggeman found opponents who believed that the bill was a precedent for other cases, and that it was a precedent for other cases, and that it was a precedent for other cases.

But to the woman who is, I might say, overdominated it is liable to be very serious, as in the case mentioned above.

I know of another case where a man made friends outside his home and got into a habit of leaving his home nearly every evening, just because his home was too nice.

He went on the theory that while there is no place like home it was a good thing there isn't. Home to him was too fine to be used. He did not dare do this, that or the other thing in it. He seemed to be run by rules and regulations. He didn't dare smoke for fear the curtains would get black. On returning from work he was not allowed to walk into any room except the kitchen, for fear he would soil the carpets.

He was not permitted to read in the sitting room for fear of rousing it up. This room was for company only, as many a living room is. In a word, there was no freedom. His home was his castle but not his comfort. A place for everybody but the man who made it. So he chose the line of least resistance and quietly got all he could of recreation away from his home."

Almost since the honeymoon days his wife never cared to participate in any of his pleasures outside of his home, and gradually they got into the way of living apart and yet together.

And there is the tragedy found in many a household—the tragedy of everlasting order.

Order is all very well, but an over-supply of it is bound to work havoc in any home.

means of supporting himself, that of taking magazine subscriptions over a specially contrived telephone instrument attached to his head. In dull seasons he has straggled in other lines of unemployment, that he could connect over the telephone. Customers or prospective customers over the telephone are familiar with the cheery ring of his hearty voice over the phone and often are confounded by the flow of wit and good humor which they know is coming from a rack of pain, for unlike paralysis, which may deaden the nerves, the progress of his malady has brought steadily increasing pain.

As his body has become inactive, his mind seems to have become more active and instead of ever becoming depressed, adversity piled one upon another have only caused his spirits to rise in greater exuberance. He has missed a chance for a year and an age, and in a situation overlooked by the able-bodied listener. He surprises people with his relish for news and for gossip, for music, for good things to eat, all the good things of life, and with his lively comment interpreted with the new slang and many quaint expressions of his own. Supplying ideas to comic artists and cartoonists is one of his favorite diversions, and that and composing jokes to spring on his friends.

The world's most famous invalid and the world's greatest optimist are titles some authorized commission ought to bestow upon Arthur Rump. By telephone and correspondence dictated to his faithful combination nurse and secretary Miss Agnes Sheen, whom he calls "Honey" for short, he has made a wide acquaintance and won great credit. As a publisher of an English periodical with which he had dealings, printed along with his story, brought him 25 letters from strangers in one mail last week. Just to show how much better known he is than St. Louis in some quarters, these letters were all addressed St. Louis, Mich.

Recently his next-door neighbor, William H. Donald, commented and presented to him a wheeled couch upon which he can be rolled about, so that now he sits out in an ambulance and even leaves the neighborhood upon occasion.

Attended a Ball.

He attended the Foreman's ball the night of the 20th and had many scores of comments to make thereafter upon the modern dances compared to those of the days when he thought himself the "king bee of all the dancers."

He celebrated the news of his probable compensation at the theater by attending the symphony concert given the school children by the Post-Dispatch, and remained to take in the picture show in the afternoon.

He has been unconquered in his efforts to obtain a pension, considering the first alone when his friends have become discouraged by the setbacks and feeling very unfavorable indications and reports in a spirit of exporting the contest. An application made last summer that his bill had reached a final stage, created the false impression that he soon would be receiving a regular income and even a handsome pension, and that this had the serious effect of causing customers to grow careless of renewing their magazine subscriptions with him. Thus Uncle Sam was placed in the position of injuring the business of a citizen working under difficulties which he ought as far as possible to relieve. No doubt, Mrs. Brueggeman used this circumstance as a plea in his behalf. At any rate, she has been successful, and more deliberate and formal methods had failed.

Objections were made that to grant this claim would establish a precedent warranting claims amounting to millions of dollars to back pay to other persons who had suffered injuries in the past.

Mrs. Brueggeman did a lot of research work, digging up precedents with which to put the claim on new bases. With these and a complete history of the case, she was armed when she appeared before the committee. She had to make some compromises in the end, but was able to show how by amending the bill, changing the figure of $47 to $48 a month, eliminating the back pay feature, and somehow relieving the commission of all responsibility, the dread precedent could be avoided.

Everybody knows of the case of Arthur Rump and will be glad that at last Uncle Sam has been enabled to do something for this good citizen and heroic sufferer. Twenty years ago when a mail pouch thrown from a car and his spine was fractured, Ankylitis resulted and has progressed until every joint in his body has become absolutely rigid. He has been bedridden since 1911. In medical annals his case is famous the world over, but in the lay world he is more famous still for a mental and spiritual triumph over absolute physical handicap.

Never Lost Interest in Life.

Physicians marvel at his physical resistance as he has lain there for three years, stark and immovable from the neck down. Others marvel that while surrendering almost every bodily function, he never has surrendered the keenest interest in life, nor even activity in business.

Many years ago he hit upon a street.

London—A wide, vague, seems in more for the Harlequin hat. This recently made its appearance and already the wearers may be counted by the dozens. In two colors, generally small and close-fitting, the Harlequin is covered with stretched satin or soft kid. It is worn chiefly for sports or on the street.

He never had my letter," I told myself softly. I sent a warm glow of comfort to my heart. "He never had my letter."

I could go no further along that line of thought, so many forbidden dreams lay there.

I went upstairs to my boy's bedroom and sat down beside his bed.

THIRTEENTH INSTALLMENT.

I DON'T believe I should have resented had Richard kissed me, but he did not, he just held my hand hard.

"I never got any letter from you," he said, in a strangled voice. "I have never heard from you from that day in the park until now. You are sure you wrote me?"

"I gave it to Miss Linnie, and she promised to give it to you herself," I answered tremulously. It seemed to matter tremendously all at once. My fingers shook.

"The never did. I swear to God that she never did," he told me solemnly. "If I had had it," he stopped.

"He laughed and let my hand go. 'We can't bring back the past, can we?' he said. 'We can only go on—on. Marjorie, do you know the time for me to be going?'"

"My moment had come, he would never say the words I had hungered all my life to hear, never tell me that he loved me."

I was a married woman, and a mother. Tears swarmed in my eyes as we went back to the house. I suppose I ought to be ashamed to admit it. I suppose a mother of a beautiful, beloved son, and a little daughter, ought to be ashamed to admit that she has ever given a thought to any man who is not their father, but I was not very old, and I know I would have given anything I possessed that night to have heard Richard say he loved me.

But it was comforting to know he had never had my letter; comforting to know that he had not gone away because he felt he could not reply to it, as I seemed to expect. I told one of the servants to bring his horse and trap around to the front of the house, and I went to the door to see him off.

"He was driving to a village seven miles away," he told me, where he was staying with friends. "Then—then perhaps I shall see you again?" I faltered. "If—if you care to come over."

For a moment he did not answer. He absently patted the silk neck of the coat, which was stamped impatiently, looking to be off.

"Thank you—thanks very much," he said. "But I know he did not mean to come."

We stood for a few moments in desultory conversation; we talked about the weather, and the prospect of a good harvest, and the cultivation of flowers, and such ordinary topics, while all the time I felt as if my heart were scratching imploring hands to him and crying, "Don't go! Oh, don't go!"

Then all at once, as if in answer to my unspoken words, he turned. "I must say good-by," he said. "It's getting late, and—"

"I felt his eyes on me in the moonlight, but I would not meet them. He took my hand, and raising it, kissed it very gently.

"Good-by, and God bless you!"

I stood still where Richard left me, listening to the sound of the trap wheels flying away down the road. Then I went slowly back to the house. My heart felt cold and dead; in vain I took myself to task, called myself wicked and ungrateful. I loved Richard tenderly; I had always loved him from that moment of our first meeting by the stream. I knew that I should always love him.

"He never had my letter," I told myself softly. I sent a warm glow of comfort to my heart. "He never had my letter."

I could go no further along that line of thought, so many forbidden dreams lay there.

I went upstairs to my boy's bedroom and sat down beside his bed.

He was fast asleep. I could hear his deep even breathing, and once the little sighing sound he made as he turned on his pillow.

I had told Richard my children were all I had to love, but I had not told him how much they were to me, how much! Perhaps because no words of mine could describe the love which was almost adoration, which I had given to little Richard since that first moment they had him in my arms.

While I had him nothing else mattered greatly, he was mine—my very own.

Once again life went on uneventfully, days grew into weeks, and weeks into months, and then—then came the day when Richard went to boarding school.

With all my will and determination I had striven to put it off, but Francis was adamant. He would be boarding school.

Born who did not go to a boarding school were unmanly and molly-coddles, he declared; it would be the making of Richard. He was too much used to his mother's attention; he was wanted to find his level; he was wanted to find his level.

I suppose it was substantially true, but the thought of parting with him was like tearing out my heart.

I begged and implored, I even wept, but it was no use, and one day I sat looking at my boy's books packed and corded and labeled, ready to go.

Richard was delighted, though I know he did not show it much for fear of hurting me. He talked about the holidays and "half term," when I could go down and see him; he had given me strict instructions what sort of "luck" to send him. He told Edna that he would bring home some of the "chaps" to spend the holidays with him.

He was growing up so fast; my baby had long since vanished, and now I was losing the child into which the baby had grown.

Richard had even smoked his first cigarette! I had caught him with the victor's son in the old barn trying hard to imagine they were enjoying themselves.

When he saw me—and I suppose, my shocked expression—he looked a little ashamed, but after a moment, offered the much chewed end for my acceptance.

"It's over so nice," he said smilingly.

He was 12 when he went to boarding school. I took him to London myself, and saw him off with a lot of other boys.

"Don't cry in front of all these chaps, mother," he whispered to me when the time came for parting. But he was very near tears himself as I kissed his dear brown face.

"Don't forget me, mother," I whispered with a sob. "And you'll write every week—promise me."

He promised, of course, but I could see that his thoughts were full of the new life in which he was going, and the other chaps, and his new cricket bat, and the box of jam and cakes which I had packed for him.

Then the guard blew his whistle, and the train steamed slowly away from the platform.

THE last I saw of my boy was him waving his hand, which presently I could not really distinguish from the many others hanging out of the windows, although I tried hard to believe that I knew the difference.

I turned away with a feeling of desolation. My husband had refused to come with me, he said unsympathetically that he knew I should be lonely, and make a fool of myself, and he hated to leave. So he stayed at home and left me to break my heart alone.

Four months, with dear, beloved sons to love! How often since have

I seen many such little partings between boys in East India and mothers trying to smile in spite of the tears in their eyes, and my own heart has ached in sympathy.

I thought it impossible to be more unhappy than I was that day when Richard went to boarding school; but now I realize that I never knew then what unhappiness really meant.

I hated the house without him; the sight of his books, and the top out of which he had long since grown, about the rooms, broke my heart afresh each day.

Edna watched me with impatience in the blue eyes so like her father's. "Anyone would think Dicky was dead, mother," she said reproachfully. "I only wish I could go to boarding school."

I told Francis what she said, and he laughed and said he could not spare her. She was much more his favorite than Richard, no doubt, because she was so like him.

He treated her as if she were a grown-up lady; he teased her about having "beardache," so that by the time she was 13 she behaved as if she were 21.

His governess could do nothing with her, and she defied me. "I'm the only one who understands the child," my husband said grandiloquently. "Leave her to me."

So I had only the holidays to look forward to. I simply used to sit and wait for him, and when he came, even then they were a disappointment. Richard generally brought some new book or something, but with him, and sometimes a letter, all day they were out of my mind. So he gave a thousand. I only saw them at night, when I was silly of me to do so.

Of course, I knew it would end in her getting her own way.

HAIRDRESSING VS. ALGEBRA

By W. A. McKeever

IN Kansas City, Kan., there is a 14-year old girl bearing the beautiful name of Antoinette who would like to start a hairdressing department in school and teach the other girls to arrange their tresses attractively. Thus she speaks: "I have practiced combing my mother's hair and have helped some of my neighbors arrange their hair for special occasions. So believe I should like to teach hairdressing."

Here is a junior high school girl who deserves a medal for a brilliant idea, and a suggestion that should be put into practice everywhere. If there is anything which worries high school girls, which they do every day and worse than no way, it is the combining of their hair.

In 29 cases out of 100, algebra is a nightmare to the ordinary girl. She hates it, or looks upon it as so much school "discipline," or something to take for another "credit." A thousand years or so in the dusty past, some wise monk invented algebra.

Then for 900 years of this millennium the wise ones studied the subject to improve the mind. But during the past generation this system

I AM HATE

By Sophie Irene Loeb

A FEW years ago I wormed my way into the heart of a woman—a lovely creature. Full of joy and laughter. And today I saw the wreck of her. Unlovely and unloved. Alone and beating the air with her hands. So complete, so fully was she consumed by me that she no longer resembled herself. But a creature wan and wild. Five years—and in that short space I have worked a miracle of madness. And triumphed over my arch enemy—Love. And it was not easy. But I called to my aid my loyal friends, Suspicion and Jealousy. And when they had completed their work And tortured her into the belief, false though it was, That her husband was untrue. And her bosom friend a traitor. Then I finished the work. By banishing the love that was in her And possessing her myself. And now I am King. For she has slowly but surely Driven from her those who were close, And the breach is wide. And I laugh at "what fools these mortals be" Who when they let me enter Find me but a boomerang that hits them, And I laugh again. When I think how easy they can banish me and be happy By just heeding the soothing words Of my enemy's allies—Tolerance and Forgiveness. Ah, yes, I am the great consumer of humanity. For I depend on the frailty of mankind And he does not fall for me. Yet I may be blown away By the breath of Real Love. But all the good winds of the world Cannot displace me. For once I have entered the heart I seek to destroy the soul as well. Let him beware who lets me enter, For I make my job complete—I am Hate!

of puzzles has not been recognized as even a strengthening cordial. It is for most girls especially—merely a "credit" or "discipline," or "to get by with."

Every sane educator knows that algebra is as useless as it is uninteresting to high school girls, but no school dares to drop the subject because the college still has it listed as an entrance requirement. Worse than all, while the smart curriculum makers have been quarreling over the matter of abstract entrance requirements—discipline, including algebra—I personally have watched two generations of high school girls grow up without the advantage of a single school lesson on the—interesting and important matter of doing up their tresses.

"Oh, that would be too much a matter of fun," croaks an old nineteenth century opinion. "The girls would become vain over the appearance of their hair."

That is, the girls would become deeply interested in learning how to take care of their tresses, and no school subject should be especially interesting. It should require grind, grit, close application and the pain of tedium. Algebra is the ideal subject of this dull, joy-killing type.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

An Exciting Mix-up

By Thornton W. Burgess

SAMMY JAY was excited. He was so excited that he hopped up and down. He looked as though he was trying to do a queer kind of dance. He wasn't. He was simply so excited that he couldn't keep still an instant. Never once did he take his eyes from the door of Farmer Brown's sugar house. Farmer Brown's Boy was opening that door and Sammy Jay just knew something was going to happen.

When Farmer Brown's Boy threw open the door he quickly stepped back as if he expected something or someone to rush out. But nothing and no one did, and after a wait of a moment or two he cautiously peered inside. The sight that met his eyes caused him to exclaim right out. The inside of that sugar house looked as if a small whirlwind had been busy in there. Not seeing anybody at first, Farmer Brown's Boy stepped right inside.

Hardly was he inside when from the furthest corner there was a rush, and before he could move or see what was coming a half-grown Bear dived between his legs, upsetting him. It was Boxer scrambling for that open door. Farmer Brown's Boy yelled. Boxer squealed as Farmer Brown's Boy came down on his back. Then Boxer and Wool Wool tried to squeeze through that door at the same time with Farmer Brown's Boy mixed up with them. To this day Sammy Jay is in doubt as to which of the three was the most badly scared.

Farmer Brown's Boy was sure that he was being attacked by at least half a dozen Bears. He yelled and struggled. Boxer and Wool Wool, remembering all the dreadful things Mother Bear had told them about these two-legged creatures, thought of nothing but getting away from there as fast as they could. The yells of Farmer Brown's Boy added to their fright. So for a moment or two Bears and boy were all mixed up in that doorway. Then Wool Wool managed to get free and started off through the trees, running as she had never run before. A moment later Boxer got free and followed in headlong haste. Farmer Brown's boy scrambled to his feet just in time to see two half-grown Bears bumping into trees and tumbling over logs, too frightened to see where they were going. And such looking Bears as they were! They had knocked down a small bag of flour, which Farmer Brown's Boy had kept in the sugar house for making pancakes. Of course, it had burst and it had covered both of them. Their coats had been all smeared with syrup and, of course, the flour had stuck. So, instead of two black Bears, Farmer Brown's Boy saw two black-and-white Bears. Having not yet discovered what had happened, he didn't know what to make of it. Never in his life had he heard of Bears with black and white coats.

Of course Sammy Jay had seen that mixup in the doorway, and until those two young Bears were free and had taken to their heels he was so excited that he couldn't find his voice. When he did find it how he did scream! The truth is, Sammy was quite as much puzzled by the appearance of those two young Bears as was Farmer Brown's Boy. And such a sight as was Farmer Brown's Boy himself! His clothes were torn. His face was scratched. He was smeared all over with syrup and flour and soot, which had come from the coats of those two young Bears when they struggled with him to get out the door. As Farmer Brown said when he arrived a few minutes later, he was a mess.

Your weekly wash snowier than ever

SNOWY bed-spreads, sheets and pillow cases. Plenty of clean clothes for all the family.

"How proud you are of your freshly laundered things, but what endless rubbing it meant before you used this entirely new kind of soap!"

An hour's soaking in Rinso suds does more than all the soaking with ordinary soap and all the hard rubbing you used to do.

After soaking, only a few pieces need any rubbing at all. A little dry Rinso rubbed on these gets them clean as can be, and not a thread is weakened.

Rinso is the great soap maker's answer to women who want a soap to do the family wash as easily and wonderfully as Lux does fine things. Rinso is sold everywhere. Get it today—at grocery and department stores, Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

NOTE—In hard water it takes from 3/4 to 1 package of Rinso to make good suds. In very hard water you will need from 1 1/2 to 2 packages to a tub to get the big lasting suds that loosen all the dirt.

MY FAVORITE STORIES

By IRVIN S. COBB

A DOMICILE FOR ALL ETERNITY.

ONE of the surest tests of the excellence of a story is whether or not it speedily reaches the stage. Some stories no doubt originate there—born in the minds of putter comedians or monologists; but the majority, I think, are built up on a foundation of fact elsewhere and then by adoption go into the theater.

Here is a sample. I heard it years ago; it was told as an actual occurrence. Since then I have heard it at least three in the music halls, slightly altered in form, but basically the same. The first version, as I recall it, had to do with a couple of dukes in Memphis.

One of them, who posed as had, had just announced his intention of breaking into a chattering supper where his presence was not desired. His companion followed him to the door.

"I'll be waitin' for you outside yere," he stated.

"If you ain't gwine to wile me 'tain't no use for you to be hangin' 'bout," said the truculent one.

"Oh, yas, dey is," said the friend, "I'll wait 'round to carry you to yer home after den niggers in dere gits through wukkin' on you."

"Not a chance!" proclaimed the first negro, vaingloriously, "sides 'uh, I ain't got no home."

"Oh, dat's all right," murmured his friend, softly, "I'm gwine dis you use."

MORE TRUTH THAN POETRY

By James J. Montague.

DISAPPOINTMENT.

There's nothing that would please me more
Than to pursue a plesiosaur
To make my prey
And walk and slay
This monstrous fierce and frightful;
To track him to his jungle lair,
And to destroy him then and there
And view my kill
Would yield a thrill.
Exciting and delightful.

So when I read that such a brute
Was running loose, I planned pursuit.
My panning ferret
Could know no rest
Until at last I met him.
I cleaned my weapons, packed my grip
And took my passage on the ship
That sailed where he
Was said to be.
Resolved that I should get him.

But when I was about to start
News came that made me sick at heart.
The plesiosaur,
With monstrous mean,
And not a jot of reason,
Declared this mighty beast should not
Be hunted, chased, pursued or shot
And—show of bows—
Passed laws to close
The plesiosaur season!
